

Tidal Wave Danger Dies Down

TOKYO—(Reuters)—Small tidal waves were hitting the Pacific coast of northern Japan today after an early-morning earthquake rocked the area, the meteorological agency said.

SAIGON (AP)—More than 100 cities, towns and hamlets across South Vietnam were attacked today with rockets, mortars and infantry charges in what may be the kickoff of an autumn offensive, military spokesmen reported.

Saigon, Da Nang and the old Imperial capital of Hue were among the targets.

Also hit were three provincial and district capitals near the Cambodian border north of Saigon.

NORTHERN AREAS

The hardest hit area where the heaviest ground fighting raged was in the three northern provinces, an area along the Cambodian border 110 miles wide and 50 miles deep, and roughly 60 to 80 miles northwest to northeast of Saigon.

Field reports said North Vietnamese troops from at least two divisions, possibly three, launched rocket, mortar and ground attacks on the provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

The district capital of Loc Ninh 14 miles farther north, an American task force headquarters at Quan Loi four miles northeast of An Loc, the provincial capital of Song Be, 80 miles north of Saigon, and a half dozen American artillery bases protecting the towns also were hit.

At last report fighting was continuing.

LULL BROKEN

The fighting and shelling broke an eight-week lull in the war. The action was the heaviest in three months since last May 11 when more than 200 allied bases and towns were shelled and several ground attacks launched.

There was no firm count on casualties, but U.S. headquarters said on the basis of fragmentary reports that they appeared to be light.

FALL CAMPAIGN

Military spokesmen commenting on stepped up Viet Cong activity Monday, had warned:

"The intelligence we have... indicates the enemy is preparing for a fall campaign to be conducted during August and September."

Only Six-Year-Old Free In Halifax Bank Caper

HALIFAX (CP)—What can five kids do for a little excitement on a boring afternoon? How about holding up a bank?

That's what five Halifax youngsters—one six-year-old, two 10 years of age and two 11—decided Monday, and they almost got away with nearly $1,400 in loot.

An amazed police inspector said it made history as far as he was concerned. Here's how he described the action:

The five entered the Nova Scotia Savings and Loan Ltd.

office on downtown Granville St. about 3:45 p.m. One of them, believed to be the six-year-old, hopped over the counter and helped himself to a cash drawer.

Somebody finally noticed him, but by this time he had distributed $1,360 to his accomplices.

"What are you doing?" a bank employee asked him.

"Nothing," was the reply.

"Did you touch that cash drawer?"

"Nope."

And the boy bounced back

over the counter and disappeared out the front door behind his four friends.

Police nabbed them a couple of blocks away and recovered all but $120 of the money, which police said one lad hid on his escape route.

However, when the boy took police to the hiding place, there was no money.

The boys were sent home to their parents and will be charged in juvenile court. All but the six-year-old, that is, He's too young to be charged under the Criminal Code.

B.C. Calls Pollution Shot

By IAN STREET

Prime Minister Trudeau's claim that the federal government was prepared to make pollution "a criminal offence" means virtually nothing to B.C. Resources Minister Ray Williston said here Monday.

Commenting on the statement made last weekend in Vancouver, Mr. Williston said the prime minister "went to great lengths to say he would put municipal councils and corporate executives in jail, then just moved along enough to say this would be done if requested by provincial governments."

"In effect, all he did was say (Ottawa) will put certain sections in the Criminal Code. He said if provincial governments wish to administer them and bring them into effect, we'll provide the machinery. In fact, from an administrative viewpoint Ottawa is really not doing anything."

The minister added: "We're quite capable of looking after our own situation insofar as enforcement is concerned."

He was asked whether B.C. had ever discussed with federal authorities the possibility of providing jail terms for those who cause pollution. Mr. Williston replied there had been no such discussions.

"I have never found in dealing with responsible corporate executives and others that you have to talk in this way. As a matter of fact I couldn't really understand the stand the prime minister has taken. He must have found this from experience in eastern Canada because we have not had this type of experience in dealing with our executives or our municipalities either."

He also criticized NDP leader Tom Berger for stating that he should close down the Northwood Pulp mill near Prince George because it was polluting the Fraser River.

"I would agree with Mr. Berger if the Northwood people had taken the stand that they were polluting the river and we not going to do anything about it. As it is, they have admitted in a straightforward manner that things aren't going well, but they are doing something about it."

"We have a 100-to-1 safety margin and they are not doing damage to fish or to anything else."

"Under the circumstances Northwood is co-operating. And I think the 350 jobs directly involved, and many more attendant thereto, deserve better consideration than a politician coming up and saying, 'We're stopping production in this mill.'"

Trudeau Faces Charge

Londonderry

Police Fight Rioters

LONDONDERRY (CP)—Riot police battled with 300 Protestants and Roman Catholics near this Northern Ireland city late Monday night in a fresh outburst of violence.

Trouble broke out in Dunganon when rival factions pelted each other with stones. Three police and several rioters were injured. One man was arrested.

The trouble came as residents tensed for another test of nerves—an anniversary parade today by 10,000 Protestants to commemorate the relief of Londonderry in 1689 from the siege of Roman Catholic King James II.

Roman Catholic and Protestant leaders planned to mingle in the crowds today to watch for trouble. But observers here said the question is whether the moderate majority can contain the almost casual violence of roving elements.

Premier James Chichester-Clark last week flew to London to discuss the possible use of British troops in the event of serious disorders. His talks followed the worst violence in 34 years in the Ulster capital of Belfast, when more than 100 persons were injured in riots earlier this month. The violence was sparked by another Protestant parade.

The renewal of religious passions started here in November, when civil rights demonstrators urged equal rights for the Jesmer swore out the information before Justice of the Peace Don Stewart at police headquarters, alleging he was assaulted last Friday, the night of a demonstration outside a Liberal party dinner.

Mr. Stewart said he has scheduled an ex parte hearing for 4:15 p.m. Friday, at which time he will decide whether or not the charge can be proceeded with. "It is at my discretion."

About 300 persons gathered outside the Seaford Armory here for the demonstration. Mr. Trudeau had agreed to address the crowd but did not do so after shouts drowned even a demonstration leader.

The information was signed at about 11 p.m. PDT Monday by Jesmer, a laborer who has been living in Vancouver for the last two months. He said he came here to seek work.

Common assault is an indictable offence under the Criminal Code of Canada and carries a maximum penalty of two years.

Mr. Stewart told reporters he had no choice but to accept the information and added:

"It means Mr. Trudeau literally has been charged but there has been no process to command his appearance before any court."

"It means he is definitely charged but no evidence has been heard. This will be heard at 4:15 p.m. Friday, Aug. 15, and then I will either issue a process or not. It is at my discretion."

Mr. Stewart said that if he decides that prosecution is to proceed, a summons could be issued requiring Mr. Trudeau's attendance in court or a warrant could be issued for his arrest.

The justice of the peace said that if he decides the case should go ahead, "that's it, save an appeal to a higher court."

Mr. Stewart said he will hear witnesses Friday. Rick Stow, 18, of Mississauga, Ont., who was with Jesmer when Jesmer swore out the information, described himself as a witness.

Peterson Claims NDP Imports

● Three summonsed on sign charges. Page 6.

Social Credit is fighting an uphill battle in this election against the NDP which is bringing in party organizers from as far away as Ontario, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Monday.

He said Social Credit are confident of victory in what is still basically a two-way fight between the socialists, represented by the NDP, and the free enterprise government party.

Liberal leader Patrick McGee, Mr. Peterson said, is "really stretching the credibility gap" when he suggests the Liberals are going to form the next government.

"First it was the balance of power for the Liberals," he said. "Then a minority government and now a majority Liberal government. This is certainly not what I'm finding in the country at all."

The attorney general said Social Credit face a more difficult task this election because unknown numbers of organizers are being brought into the province by the NDP.

"We haven't got an easy campaign ahead of us," Mr. Peterson said. "In an effort to try and ensure an NDP victory at the polls Aug. 27 people are being brought to work at the grass roots level from Ontario, Manitoba and the (NDP) national office."

"This by itself makes for a more difficult battle than we have faced in past elections."

Royal Navy Solves St. Helena Crisis

—Jonathan, 140 years old and the only giant tortoise left on the island of St. Helena, has been causing a bit of trouble lately.

He's been upending benches near the tennis courts on this South Atlantic island and disrupting croquet games by sitting on the croquet balls. The British governor, Sir Dermot Murphy, decided Jonathan must be getting lonely, his mate having died 100 years ago in a fall from a cliff.

Today, the Royal Navy took a hand. It took over a pair of giant tortoises hatched four years ago at the botanical gardens in Mahe and put them aboard the supply ship Fort Sandusky for the trip one-fourth of the way around the world.

The trio apparently started walking north, attempting to return to the paved Saline Valley road. The northerly walk took them steadily down into the hotter valley area.

Dobson dropped first. The elderly man's body was found five miles from the stalled car.

MAST and his son continued north, shedding clothing as they went. They had made their way another 12 miles when the boy stumbled and fell.

His son down, and himself near death, the elder Mast trudged on. He collapsed a half mile from his son.

Sheriff's deputies, in retracing the trio's path, located a slush, sand-covered spring within a half mile of the car.

It was described by Sheriff's Sgt. David Walker as a spring-fed oasis beneath the sandy surface. A little scooping by hand, and the sand would have become a life-saving pool, he said.

Oil Products Labelled 'Hot'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The striking Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union Monday announced plans to declare "hot" today the products of six oil companies in the British Columbia Lower Mainland: Imperial, Shell, Gulf, Home, Texaco and Standard.

The trio apparently started walking north, attempting to return to the paved Saline Valley road. The northerly walk took them steadily down into the hotter valley area.

Dobson dropped first. The elderly man's body was found five miles from the stalled car.

Federal Offices Bombed

MONTREAL (CP)—A building housing federal government offices was heavily damaged early today when a powerful bomb exploded at the main entrance.

Police said no one was in the building when the blast occurred shortly before 3 a.m. There were no injuries.

The bomb was planted at the entrance of the 14-story building which houses the offices of the Canada Manpower Centre and the National Revenue Department.

Death Valley

Victims Miss Life Pool

LOS ANGELES (LAT)—Two men and a boy unaware that water lay only a half mile from their stranded car—stumbled several miles to their deaths in a desert beside Death Valley, sheriff's deputies said Monday.

All three victims—Arnold Dobson, 65; Harold Mast 40, and his 16-year-old son, Harold Jr., all of California—died from prolonged exposure to 120-degree desert temperatures, officials said.

Dobson and the Masts were driving in the rugged Saline Valley desert when their car ran out of gas on a little used dirt road 15 air miles west of Death Valley.

Despite the fact that the men were reported to be experienced desert travelers, they carried no water, according to Inyo County sheriff's deputies.

The trio apparently started walking north, attempting to return to the paved Saline Valley road. The northerly walk took them steadily down into the hotter valley area.

Dobson dropped first. The elderly man's body was found five miles from the stalled car.

Green Beret Victim Called Double Agent

SAIGON (AP) — The lawyer for one of eight United States Special Service soldiers accused of murdering a Vietnamese man said Monday that the victim was a double agent who imperilled the security of thousands of Americans in South Vietnam.

Lawyer George Gregory of Chawar, S.C., told a news conference the dead man worked for both the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and the North Vietnamese.

"You will find that this agent — if they're able to prove even this much — was wrongfully entrusted with such valuable information that hundreds and thousands of lives of American agents and American fighting men were saved in the most necessary manner," Gregory added.

Gregory said his client, Maj. Thomas Middleton, 36, of Jefferson, S.C., was being "sacrificed" for political reasons and suggested that Congress investigate the case.

The bespectacled lawyer charged without mentioning names that "certain varied and high commanders" were so afraid of international and political repercussions "that it became necessary to sacrifice the life, the career of my client."

Gregory said he had filed a petition calling for freeing Middleton, who he said was confined to the stockade. The petition said Middleton's rights were violated by imprisonment before trial.

Gregory's statement followed by a few hours a report from informed U.S. military sources that the alleged murder victim was a communist agent and his slaying was part of an assigned "military mission."

The sources suggested that the charges in the secrecy-shrouded case were brought against the eight men, seven officers and a sergeant, because of a vendetta by regular U.S.

Army officers jealous of the elite Special Forces, popularly known as Green Berets for the headgear they wear.

The accused include Col. Robert Rheault of Vineyard Haven, Mass., who commanded the Green Berets until the charges were brought against him last month.

U.S. military officials have divulged no details of the case beyond saying that the slaying occurred June 20 near the Special Forces headquarters at Nha Trang. The eight are accused of murder and conspiracy.

The body of the victim, said to have been dumped in Vietnamese waters, has not been found and the U.S. Navy apparently has given up a search of almost a month.

Indications of Big Battles Seen for Red Holidays

SAIGON (AP) — United States military spokesmen reported Monday that the heaviest fighting in nearly two months is raging across South Vietnam. They said there are signs the Viet Cong guerrillas and North Vietnamese troops are preparing a major offensive.

Giap

"The Intelligence we have indicates that the enemy is preparing for a full campaign to be conducted during August and September," one spokesman said. "Although there is some variation in the timing for the campaign, the enemy holidays of Aug. 18, Sept. 2 and Sept. 23 have been mentioned by defectors and captured documents."

In the preceding 24 hours, North Vietnamese and Viet

Four-Year Review

North War Effort Wins Giap Plaudit

TOKYO (AP) — North Vietnam's defence minister, Vo Nguyen Giap, says the Hanoi government evacuated "millions" of town residents to the countryside and drafted a record number of young men because of the Vietnam war, the Vietnam news agency reported Monday.

Giap, the agency said, spoke at a recent conference on "the achievements of four years of people's war against the U.S. war of destruction."

BOMB HALT

The four years apparently covered the period when the United States launched its first air attacks against North Vietnam in late 1964 to then-President Johnson's decision to halt the bombardment last November.

Giap's 3,800-word speech, broadcast by the agency and monitored in Tokyo, discussed openly the problems North Vietnam faced in the initial stages of the war.

"To fight an enemy air force is not like dealing with his infantry, especially when one does not yet possess a strong air force and large range rockets to destroy enemy planes at their bases or on their way to their targets," said Giap.

"War is a bitter trial for a social system," he said. He made no mention of foreign military assistance.

To escape U.S. attacks, Giap said North Vietnam dispersed factories, storage facilities, schools and hospitals, periodically relocated gun emplacements and "evacuated to the countryside millions of townsfolk."

Crash Leads To Ouster

VIENTIANE (Reuters) — Six North Vietnamese, including an embassy official, have been ordered to leave Laos after a traffic accident Saturday led to the discovery of important military documents on Laos in a North Vietnamese embassy car, a Laotian government spokesman said.

Police found many important military documents, including a map of a Laotian government military base.

Cong have struck hard at U.S. forces along the Cambodian, Laotian and demilitarized zone frontiers, battled American infantrymen in the lowlands south of Da Nang, downed three American helicopters and stepped up mortar and rocket attacks.

At least 38 Americans were known dead and 144 wounded in the attacks. The U.S. command placed North Vietnamese-Viet Cong losses at 152 killed.

It was the heaviest fighting and caused the highest American losses for a 24-hour period since June 18, when a full settled over the battlefields.

The most critical areas appeared to be the demilitarized zone that straddles the North-South Vietnam border, and the sector north of Saigon which encompasses such cities as Loc Ninh and An Loc.

Military spokesmen made two disclosures that are still being assessed:

● North Vietnamese troops involved in five battles with U.S. marines and infantrymen since last Thursday just south of the central portion of the demilitarized zone were identified for the first time as being from the 9th Regiment of the North Vietnamese 304th Division. It was believed to be the first time the 9th Regiment has appeared in battle since the 76-day siege of the U.S. marine base at Khe Sanh in the spring of 1968.

● Two regiments of the Viet Cong 9th Division are posing a threat along with the North Vietnamese 7th Division to An Loc and Loc Ninh, in Binh Long province, north of Saigon.

U.S. intelligence estimates that there are more than 5,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops west of An Loc and on three sides of Loc Ninh.

To counter the threat, thousands of U.S. and South Vietnamese government reinforcements with tanks have been rushed into the area. It is estimated that there are perhaps as many as 10,000 American and South Vietnamese troops in the area.

Rogers Reports on Tour

Peking Rebuff 'Hard to Understand'

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Secretary of State William Rogers reported on his western Pacific tour to President Nixon Monday, telling reporters later it was difficult to comprehend why Red China was rejecting this country's bid for friendly relations.

Rogers arrived from New Zealand, last stop on a long Asian tour which he undertook independently after travelling part of the way with Nixon on his recent round-the-world journey.

The secretary was asked about the angry Red Chinese response to his statement in Hong Kong that the United States was prepared to resume talks with the Communist representatives of the Peking government.

"It is difficult to understand," said the secretary who has travelled more than 100,000 miles since joining the Nixon cabinet at the start of this administration.

"I have difficulty in seeing the logic of this," he continued. "When you say you want to be a little friendlier, they call you a war lord."

Rogers traveled, after leaving the Nixon party in the Pacific, to Japan, South Korea, Taiwan, Indonesia, Australia and New Zealand.

He stopped off in Honolulu late Sunday to talk with Adm. John McCain. Between Rogers and the Pacific commander, they shared the idea that in general terms the so-called "lull" in South Vietnam combat was continuing.

Teachers' Apple

BY INVOLVING itself in the provincial election campaign in the way it has the B.C. Teachers' Federation may be bringing upon itself the consequence it surely should most want to avoid—clear rejection.

Since the federation decided to enter the campaign without directing its support to any particular party, the Colonist has defended its right to do so.

It was remarked at the outset, sixteen months ago, that if the federation were setting out to promote the election of either the Liberals or the New Democrats to government and for this purpose were levying $3 a head on its captive membership, this would be entirely wrong.

But no one could deny the teachers' right as an association or individually to try to convince the public and the government—whatever government might be elected—of the need to make changes for the betterment of the education system.

This the BCTF is now doing. It is its method, or part of its method of campaigning, however, that seems ill-advised.

The federation is offering its own support, and seeking public support, for candidates who endorse its eight-point program and who signify this endorsement by displaying in their advertising the federation's apple with a bite out of it, a symbol of knowledge.

But while no candidate in his right senses would do otherwise than support the general theme, Better Education in B.C., and while it may be generally conceded that some revision of the province's school financing formula is needed, it is something quite different for a politician to give blanket approval to the teachers' eight-point "platform."

The platform calls for the immediate revision of the finance formula so that enough money can be invested in education to achieve the eight goals: putting the excitement and sense of adventure back into the learning process by developing new teaching methods and expanding research; reducing class sizes so that children can learn as individuals; providing proper accommodation for modern teaching and learning techniques; providing special attention for children with learning problems; making public school kindergartens available in all school districts; providing each school with a varied supply of learning materials and equipment; providing gymnasiums, playing fields and facilities for the fine arts and removing the bottleneck in higher education caused by lack of space and restrictive entrance requirements.

The goals are all desirable. But we do not all have the same spending priorities as the teachers' federation. As various office-seekers have remarked, it is unwise for any party or candidate to align with any one interest group; it is unwise to ignore that most taxpayers might not wish to pay for all these ambitious and costly advances at once.

The teachers' apple will measure their success—or lack of it. They may regret thinking of the device.

Judgment Day

THE DISGRACEFUL demonstration outside the Seaford Armory in Vancouver last Friday, when Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau was assaulted with debris and assailed with insults by people protesting against the Ottawa government's attitude towards the Vietnam war, is to be condemned in the strongest terms.

But the American draft-dodgers identified in the crowd, it should not be forgotten, are in Canada with the consent of the government and the encouragement of Canadian sympathizers, and their hostility to authority here, as in the United States, was entirely predictable.

Mr. Trudeau, after the incidents, referred to the belief of his adversaries that "the Canadian people do not deserve democracy because the Canadian people are not clever enough, or informed enough, or not intelligent enough to choose the truth that these people have chosen — and there's the flaw in their reasoning."

This, he said, is the seed of totalitarianism. There is an extraordinary similarity between Mr. Trudeau's reaction to the ugly protest and that of the Commons Opposition to his disdainful rejection of their argument for retaining the democratic processes in House rules; and the eventual decision to enforce his will on Parliament by motion of closure.

While the indignities he suffered are to be regretted, and he will have the sympathy of good citizens for this predicament, invited or not, Mr. Trudeau should be consistent. There are also seeds of totalitarianism in the gagging of the House of Commons.

Seeds of Sorrow

WHEN Prime Minister Harold Wilson surrendered to the pressures of the powerful Trades Union Congress and abandoned legislation which was designed to curb wildcat strikes by stiff penalty, he did so on the understanding that the ten million-membership congress would introduce a remedy of its own to stop unlawful stoppages in industry, so damaging to the British economy.

At the time he was harshly criticized for abandoning what had been conceded was a courageous attempt to discipline these elements of the labor force which so frequently defy law and authority and down tools on the most trivial pretexts.

And it was suspected that he embraced the TUC's alternative proposal as means of saving the Labor Party from a disastrous break with its power-base, possible disintegration and his own political future.

Now, on the very first occasion when the TUC's disciplinary power has been called upon, in the case of the six-week-old wildcat strike of 1,300 steelworkers in Port Talbot, it has failed to function.

Already 10,000 non-striking workers are idle in the huge Port Talbot plant, nationalized by the Labor government, and there is every indication that the stoppage will drastically effect other major industries vital to Britain's export trade.

If anything else were needed—and it probably was not—to doom Mr. Wilson's leadership and his party at the next general election in a year's time, it was this sort of irresponsible action by workers for whom wage adjustments are already in negotiation.

Unhappily, the people as a whole and not just the government's supporters will be the victims of Mr. Wilson's capitulation, the TUC's misleading optimism and the steelworkers' obstinacy. It is a situation in which the voter will not be found indifferent.

"Oh for Pete's sake, sit down and have your breakfast!"

The Four Noble Truths . . .

The Buddha Taught the Righteous Middle Way Followed by Millions Despite Mao's Doctrine

By FREDERICK NOSSAL

SEVERAL centuries before Christ was born, a great new religion already was sweeping the lands of Asia. Its founder was Siddhartha Gautama, the Buddha or Enlightened One.

Today, his image is worshipped in 2,000,000 shrines and temples across Asia.

Buddhism has not managed to get a strong grip on any other continent. But in Asia, religion has several million followers and a clergy of monks and nuns totalling more than 800,000.

Traditionally, Buddhism was known as the peaceful path of the middle way. Today, however, the militancy of some Buddhist organizations in Vietnam and Japan, and the problems faced by the Buddhist religion in Tibet and China have prompted one writer to call it a "faith in flames."

Siddhartha Gautama was born in 563 B.C. outside the provincial capital of Kapilavastu, in a rich plain among the foothills of Nepal.

Some legends say that the Buddha's father was a minor king, while others claim he was merely a lord of one of the Gautama clans.

At any rate, the young prince lived in extreme luxury. He told his followers how, in his father's house, there had been lotus pools — one of blue, one of red, another of white lotuses — just for his benefit.

He wore only the best cloth, and day and night his nurses and female minstrels held a white parasol over him to shield the Buddha from dust and dew.

The young prince wanted to become a hermit, but agreed to his father's wish that he should marry on the condition that an ideal wife be found for him.

She must be, he said, "of perfect manners, wholly truthful, modest, contented to his temperament and of pure and honorable birth, young and fair, but not proud of her beauty, charitable, contented in self-denial, tender as a sister or a mother, not desiring music, scents, festivities or wine, pure in thought, word and deed, the last to sleep and the first to rise in the house where she should dwell."

He married, and his wife bore him a son, but at 29 the future Buddha renounced the world to seek enlightenment. He meditated and fasted for years on end, but found that having renounced a life of ease and pleasure, he was now going to the other extreme.

The physical stresses of self-mortification forced him to place less emphasis on his spiritual and mental life. He decided to beg for food, and then for 49 days he sat under a giant tree at Bodhiya in a mystic trance until he experienced the great awakening.

After attaining enlightenment, the Buddha preached his first sermon on how men can find the middle way by following the four noble truths and the eightfold path.

The four noble truths are: All existence is suffering, suffering is caused by desire, desire can be ended, and the way to end desire is the eightfold path.

The United States annexed Hawaii 71 years ago today — in 1898 — after being requested to do so by the island republic. Since 1884 the U.S. had been leasing the naval base at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, called the paradise of the Pacific, succeeded in its long campaign for statehood in 1959 to become the 50th state in the Union. It is the first overseas and second non-contiguous state separated from the mainland by more than 2,000 miles of the Pacific Ocean.

Sickness, old age and death came to all men in their transitory existence. All the splendor of life is but ephemeral and rests on the struggle with other lives.

Suffering springs from ignorant craving and the desire to preserve individual ego.

The end of suffering is the extinction of desire or craving. To achieve the end of desire, there is an eightfold path of conduct to follow.

The eight steps on the path are: Right views or correct insight, which begins with rational understanding and proceeds to an insight that permeates one's whole being.

Right will or motives, the compassionate, wise renunciation of all pleasures of life, which are generally possible only at the expense of others.

Right speech, the avoidance of untruths and mastery of one's passions.

This is the middle way and the core of the Buddha's teachings.

As his definition of rightness, the Buddha offered five moral rules of conduct: To abstain from killing, stealing, lying, sensuality, and intoxicating drugs or liquors.

In the Buddhist scheme of life, there are five states of existence: deity, man, animal, hungry ghost and denizen of hell. A hungry ghost is described as a creature continually tormented by hunger because he has a head only the size of a pinhead sitting on top of a huge belly. The first two are considered to be meritorious states, the last three, evil.

Moral conduct may be taken as the starting point of Buddhist culture. The kernel of the Buddhist discipline is expressed in the words, "do not commit any sin, to do good, to purify one's own mind, that is the teaching of the Buddha."

As to what constitutes sin, the Lord Buddha taught that any act harmful to oneself or to another is sin. Buddha looked upon sin not as a transgression of some divine law, but as originating in the minds and deeds of man.

To help men avoid sin, he drew up elaborate lists of human weaknesses and vices which act as fetters to the mind, among them, he considered the worst to be egoism.

Buddha spread his teachings across India for 45 years, and was accepted in his lifetime as a holy man who rejected the abuses of the Hindu religion with its rigid caste system and animal sacrifices. He died at the age of 80, in the year 483 B.C., and his last words to the monks assembled around him were: "Strive earnestly. Work out your salvation with diligence."

About 150 years after the Buddha's death, the religion began to spread, and split into two main schools.

The more orthodox form, Theravada, today is the popular religion of Burma, Thailand, Laos, Cambodia, Ceylon, and parts of South Vietnam, Indonesia and India.

Mahayana Buddhism, more liberal in its interpretations of the doctrines, spread from India to China, Korea, Japan, Vietnam, Tibet and Mongolia between the third and eighth centuries A.D.

South Vietnam is another country where the Buddhist church has played an important political role in recent years. Earlier this decade, when President Ngo Dinh Diem ruled in Saigon, Buddhist monks and nuns began burning themselves to death in protest against government repression.

Throughout 1963, the Buddhists were in revolt against Diem, and their violent demonstrations in Saigon, Hue and other South Vietnamese cities were put down by the regime in the most ruthless fashion. Scores of Buddhists were killed by troops and police.

Strangely, about a third of the world's Buddhists live in a land whose leaders are strongly opposed to all religion. It is estimated that about 13 per cent of the huge Chinese population is Buddhist.

Buddhism was introduced into China from India during the reign of Emperor Ming of the Eastern Han dynasty almost 2,000 years ago.

The Chinese Communists see certain advantages in the policy of permitting Buddhist services. By allowing these Peking can present a friendly image to the countries of Southeast Asia where Buddhism is the dominant religion.

It seems that the Chinese Buddhists have stretched the elasticity of Buddhism as far as possible just to keep their religion alive in China.

During its long history in China, Buddhism has often submitted itself to the needs of the state, and allowed itself to be controlled and supervised by the secular authorities.

The resilience of Buddhism has meant that in past centuries the religion has survived despite strict political supervision. And by bending under the present storm in China, Buddhism could even outlive the pressures of Mao Tse-tung's communism.

In the same way as the Kremlin and its followers in Eastern Europe have been forced to fight Christianity, the Communists of Asia will meet continuing and frequently sharp resistance from Buddhism. For religions with histories going back two millennia and even longer cannot be vanquished by materialistic creeds that elevate national leaders to the heights of political gods.

So it has. For even leaving aside State Secretary Gerard Pelletier's domain (which includes the CBC) the press was slow in grasping and conveying to the public the importance of what Mr. Macquarrie rightly called "this vital phase of parliamentary deliberations."

Trudeau 'Finished' With Canada Press

By LUBOR J. ZINK

WHEN it was all over in the Commons last week and honorable members ("nobodies" and "somebodies" alike) were sipping their drinks at the end-of-session party in the Speaker's chambers, I asked the muscle-flexing and obviously self-satisfied prime minister what his next target was now that he had finished with Parliament.

Was it the press?

Mr. Trudeau eyes twinkled with the sort of are-you-kidding amusement when he said: "I finished with the press last January."

(Last January, as some people may still recall, Mr. Trudeau kicked the press in the posterior, to use his recent expression, for reporting of his dates in London town and got considerable public applause for it.)

So Mr. Trudeau has 'finished' with the press. He hardly ever by his own admission, bothers to look at the papers anyway and shrugs off the rest of the mass media with equal disdain.

He never had much use for the press — except for the period when he himself used the printed word for instructing the "socialists" how to make headway in Canada "under another label, and for the few months last year when the Trudeau-maniacs in the media did their mesmerized best to catapult him from obscurity to the highest office in the land.

But that's all in the past. Mr. Trudeau no longer needs the media. In fact, increasingly critical of their own creation, they have become a bit of a nuisance; a pesky fly in the intoxicating ointment of power.

It took the CBC, which is specifically charged with keeping Canadians informed of what is going on in their country, five days to come up with a brief explanation in a radio program of the issues in the rules debate.

Can anyone blame the opposition parties for suspecting something else than sloppy "news judgment" behind this treatment? And can anyone blame them for rejecting the government's argument that the mass media would always inform the public quickly about the pros and cons of controversial legislation?

Dealing with this problem, Heath Macquarrie (PC-Hillsborough), a former political science professor and now one of the "nobodies" in the Commons under Trudeau's rule, said in the rules debate:

In Remote Chad

Legion Still Fights

By CHRIS ROBERTS
from Fort Lamy, Chad

FRANCE'S Foreign Legion is alive — and warring in Chad! Despite their lofty blarney against American and other Western military activities abroad, the French have committed themselves to a quiet but intense battle on independent African soil.

The battleground is a vast underpopulated territory that was once part of French Equatorial Africa. Independent since 1960, it is a landlocked, poverty-stricken land which takes in a large slice of the Sahara Desert.

Here, more than 2,000 French legionnaires and paratroopers backed by rocket-firing light aircraft are in action to ensure the stability of the government headed by the slim, good-looking President Francois Tombalbaye who has just been re-elected for a second seven-year term.

These official communiques from Paris and Fort Lamy, Chad's capital, insist that the French force is there at Tombalbaye's request to combat marauding groups of "bandits" in the northern deserts.

But long-time observers here in Fort Lamy have few doubts that a full-scale rebellion is under way in the northern desert region. And basically it is a familiar African conflict: a largely Arab north versus a black south.

Only the French military presence is preventing all-out war and sustaining the shaky dictatorship of former teacher Tombalbaye, 51, who was the country's first post-independence president.

Washington Calling

Dangerous Lunatics at Large

It may be only a speck on the confident surface of the body politic, or it could be a symptom of deep-seated internal trouble. The arrest of the founder of the extreme right Minutemen, Robert Bolivar DePugh, and his lieutenant, Walter Patrick Peyson, in Truth or Consequences, New Mexico, deserves more consideration than it has had for two highly significant reasons.

First, despite an intensive search for the two men by the FBI on charges of violating federal firearms regulations and for conspiracy to rob Seattle banks, it was a year and a half before they were apprehended. And then their arrest seems to have been due to chance recognition by a local law enforcement officer of the 1957 Jeep station wagon they were driving. The FBI had sent out an alert for the Jeep.

DePugh and Peyson boasted of their skill in evading capture for 18 months. They were passed along and concealed by the right-wing underground. Their own intensive training in survival tactics saw them through several tight spots.

Second and more important was the extraordinary cache of weapons they had built up. As uncovered by the FBI after the arrest, it included 48 rifles, carbines, shotguns, pistols and a variety of other weapons. Thousands of rounds of ammunition, high explosives, dynamite bombs, fuses, cans of tear gas, rifle scopes, a signal pistol for flares, even bows and arrows equipped with impact grenades were stored in the hideout. It was equipment enough to launch a small guerrilla war.

DePugh and his followers say they are building up these arsenals in anticipation of a Communist takeover in the United States. Then they mean to take to the hills and resist to the last man.

In the charge involved in the Seattle bank plot, their tactics strongly resemble those of the early revolutionaries in czarist Russia in the first years

Popular General Boxed In in Pre-Election Manoeuvres

Israel's Old Guard Outflanks Dayan

By JOSEPH KRAFT, from Tel Aviv

Israel's national hero, Defence Minister Moshe Dayan, was driven deep into a political box last week at the convention here of the country's ruling Labor party.

And the masterful stroke against General Dayan, was the more masterful for being concealed behind the smokescreen of a murky foreign policy debate which was further confused by press accounts of Israel's annexationist tendencies.

The upshot is that Dayan will probably never replace Mrs. Golda Meir as prime minister of this country. And that prospect, far from promoting annexationist tendencies, leaves the door open to a diplomatic settlement in the Near East in the unlikely event the Arab states are interested.

Behind all this lies Dayan's special place in Israel's battle of the generations.

The Defence Minister is the man of post-independence Israel. Blunt, tough, decisive, cocky, and more given to deeds than words, he personifies the qualities that have come to be most admired here in the past two decades.

He has an irresistible personal appeal to the vast numbers of persons under 40 who make up over 60 per cent of this very young country.

For precisely these reasons, Dayan is anathema to the old guard which has run the country since its founding. As veterans of the long, lonely fight that preceded statehood, they regard him as a brash Johnny-come-lately.

Against his passion for action, they oppose a dedicated belief in the possibilities of reasoned debate and political compromise.

Death, to be sure, has turned the ranks of this old guard. Still they retain two leaders of extraordinary endurance and unmatched appeal for political manoeuvring — Prime Minister Meir, now 71, and Pinhas Sapir, 61, a big daddy of a man who is secretary of the Labor Party.

The old guard kept Dayan in the political wilderness for more than a decade after he won the great victory of Sinai in the 1956 Suez campaign. The crisis that preceded the six-day war of 1967 brought Dayan to office as defence minister.

But when Prime Minister Levi Eshkol died last year, Dayan was denied preference in favor of Mrs. Meir. Ever since, Dayan has been manoeuvring for position in the general elections due on October 28.

Dayan's tactic has been to stake out Israeli claims to strategic points in the territories occupied after the six-day war. If the old guard refused to go along, he could then break from the Labor Party and go to the country on the issue of national security.

The Meir-Sapir tactic has been to disparage territorial claims as prejudicial to the peace efforts being made by Foreign Minister Abba Eban, while, at the same time, building up the unity of the Labor Party.

To that end a prodigious organizing drive by Sapir has put on the party rolls a claimed 300,000 paid-up members — a staggering figure which, if accurate, would make Israel's Labor Party, relative to national population, the largest political grouping in the world.

The test at the party convention last week developed in two stages around the writing of the foreign affairs plank in the Labor Party platform for the October 28 election.

First, there was released a resolution stipulating by name Israeli claims to occupied territory including Jerusalem, the Golan Heights, the Gaza Strip and parts of the Sinai Desert.

This resolution, which attracted all the press notices, was a kind of informal advice to candidates — not as Dayan had wanted, a binding, written part of the platform. Still, it was close enough to the Dayan position to prevent any break on his part.

With Dayan on board, there was then released a formal written resolution that dealt with the occupied territories in the most innocuous general terms. Foreign Minister Eban could, and did, claim victory for his policy of negotiation.

As the coup de grace, Mrs. Meir ended the conference with a rousing speech that pledged not to yield "one centimetre" of occupied territory without the utmost guard for Israel's strategic requirements. As much as General Dayan, she emerged as the defender of sacred Israel.

What Dayan will do next is not clear. He could still split and go to the country in the elections on October 28. But it is too late in the day to put together lists of parliamentary candidates. The likelihood is that he will continue as minister of defence.

Mrs. Meir, by contrast, appears to be in a strong position. She could win an absolute parliamentary majority at the election. She is cleared to negotiate any time the Arabs show interest.

She may even be strong enough to pick her successor — probably Sapir or Deputy Prime Minister Yigall Alon. Most likely of all, she will carry on herself for quite a while even though she is 71.

office. A candidate must win a clear majority of all votes cast.

No one achieves that on the first ballot, then the votes of the candidate finishing last are apportioned among the remaining candidates according to second preference. The procedure continues until a victor emerges with a clear majority.

Giri has won the backing of left-wing parties, including the Communists, and presumably will stand in second place in the sentiments of those Congress Party members who will be expected to vote first for Reddy.

If Reddy does not win on the first ballot, therefore, a progressive swing to Giri can be expected. Mrs. Gandhi has pledged herself to active support of Reddy but under the circumstances probably would not be distressed if he lost to Giri.

Whatever the outcome, a fight between the left and right wings of the Congress Party can be expected in the wake of the election.

The whole affair could result in emergence of a stronger, more socialistic Congress Party shed of its dissenting right-wing elements — or the polarization of the party to such an extent that it would virtually destroy it and any chances it has of retaining a majority in the next general election in 1972.

If the syndicate succeeds in ousting Indira Gandhi as prime minister or if the Congress Party fails to attain a majority in 1972, then the role of India's president — and the man who wins the five-year presidential term this week — could become much more powerful than at any time in the history of India.

That is the stake this week in an election which will be watched closely in both the United States and the Soviet Union.

Warring Ideologies Split The Ruling Party of India

By WILLIAM COUGHLIN, from New Delhi

The presidential election which takes place in India this Saturday possesses more than usual drama and significance.

The role of India's three presidents has been largely a ceremonial one — greeting distinguished visitors, reviewing troops and cutting ribbons to open roads and factories.

Today, with India in the throes of the worst political crisis since independence, the presidential election suddenly looms with new importance.

First, it was in large part a clash over the Congress Party presidential candidate that finally precipitated a long-brewing split between Prime Minister Indira Gandhi and the right-wing Congress Party elders, known as "the syndicate."

The syndicate won and Mrs. Gandhi capitulated to its selection of speaker of the house Shriya Reddy to carry the Congress banner.

But she struck back quickly by dumping Deputy Prime Minister Morarji Desai as finance minister. She accepted Desai's resignation from the government and promptly announced nationalization of India's 14 largest banks.

The nationalization, she declared this past week is only a small step toward the higher goal of firmly establishing socialism in India.

"Bank nationalization was the beginning of a bitter struggle between the common man on one side and a few individuals on the other," she told a cheering rally outside her residence.

The right wing has denounced Mrs. Gandhi as a Communist and declared that bank nationalization is "part of the pattern" of a police state and a Soviet satellite.

"If I wanted to become a Communist, nothing could have prevented me from doing so," the prime minister retorted angrily. "I am all for the Congress and its programs and I have always been in the Congress. It does not sound reasonable to say that by implementing Congress programs and policies I have become a Communist."

But if Mrs. Gandhi is all for the Congress, the Congress is not all for her. It is assumed here that the right wing is holding off an all-out fight against her only until after the presidential election.

India's president is elected by the national and state legislatures. With the Congress Party holding — over 52 per cent of those seats, Reddy's election should be assured.

Discussion in the party could cut into that already narrow margin and further dissension could wipe it out. That is why Mrs. Gandhi's opposition is hiding its time until the votes are counted.

V. V. Giri, the former vice president who became acting president on the death of India's third president, Dr. Zakir Hussain in early May, resigned that office to contest for the presidency as an independent. With more than 20 minor candidates in the field, Giri stands to benefit the most from any widespread Congress Party defection.

The election employs the preferential ballot system in which the voters are asked to indicate their second, third and other choices for the

Life Span Limit Reached?

AP, from United Nations

Population experts theorize that man has lengthened his life span as much as he can by fighting contagious disease and will have to change his way of living to lengthen it anymore.

Their theory, set forth in a United Nations report, attempts to explain a recent rise in death rates in some countries.

They say the rates fell for 150 years mainly because improvements in living standards and simple health and medical measures brought "a decline in mortality from acute infectious diseases."

But they speculate that these methods only took advantage of "an innate resistance to infection" in mankind and now that resistance has been exploited to the limit.

"If we are to increase life expectancy," they say, "we may need to change our basic patterns of behavior."

Specially, they call for "introduction of some new factor or factors capable of preventing death from a quite different range of diseases."

They point out that more and more deaths are caused lately by heart and lung ailments, automobile accidents and suicide.

Some day, they hint, mass starvation may also be a major cause of death unless "population growth is not countered by either falling birth rates or an increasing food production or both."

The experts with the United Nations and the UN World

Health Organization prepared the report for the Population Commission, to meet in Geneva on Nov. 2-14.

They do not list the countries where death rates have begun to rise again.

But latest published figures show that death rates last year were the highest in seven years in Australia, Belgium, East Germany, West Germany, Israel and Sweden and equalled the previous seven-year high in Austria, Czechoslovakia, Finland, Greece and the United States.

No 'Lousy Cop' In Early Days

By HUBERT BEYER

In July 1938, a young man joined the Saanich police force and became the fifth staff member.

Thirty-one years later, he leans back in his chair in the Chief Constable's office and recalls some of the good old days.

"Back then, a police officer worked 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and you'd never know when you would get a day off," says 56-year-old Chief W. A. Pearson.

"Your house was your office, and your wife was your secretary. You had to live in the district to which you were assigned."

Chief Pearson saw Saanich grow from a rural district of 16,000 people mainly engaged in farming, to a thriving urban municipality of 64,000.

During his 31 years with the Saanich police department, the chief pounded the beat at dances in Brentwood, chased stray dogs with a bicycle, witnessed the advent of two-way radio communication and instituted some of the most modern techniques in police officer training.

"I never forget the day we arrested a prowler just minutes after he had broken into a business establishment. He asked us how the devil we caught him, and we told him that we were now equipped with radios," Chief Pearson recalls.

"The fellow told us if radios could do that, crime wouldn't have a chance."

When he first joined the department, he received a salary of $90 a month.

"At that time a first-class constable made $118 a month. I remember telling my wife that we'd have no worries for the rest of our lives if I made that kind of money," he says.

But somehow, he never reached the $118-level.

"The cost of living kept increasing and continued to run away, so a man's salary never seemed adequate."

He remembers the duties of a policeman in those days.

"Saanich was divided into four parts, and each policeman patrolled one; the chief stayed in the office."

"Out of necessity, you knew everyone on your beat, and everybody knew you. If you didn't have the makings of a cop, you didn't last too long."

Much of his time was taken up by chasing after stray cattle, dogs and horses. Dog licences were sold door-to-door by the policeman and in addition to that, he had to collect the annual road and poll tax, a payment levied on every resident who didn't own property.

"Fridays and Saturdays we pounded the pavement at dances, and on Sundays we'd be out at Butchart Gardens," he says.

"As remuneration for working there 10 hours every Sunday, we'd get sandwiches, a piece of cake and a bottle of beer."

There's one single undisputed advantage — to the "so-called good old days," according to Chief Pearson.

"We were close to the grass roots of the people we serve, and we had a good relationship with them."

It is the public's mistrust of the police which worries the chief, and in his opinion, it's the advent of the automobile which has essentially destroyed the relationship between public and police.

those lousy cops who gave him a ticket.

"It's the lousy-cop image we have to fight, and there isn't a thing we can do with the parents, so we have to educate the children and must try to tell them that the policeman is their friend."

No job requires a more balanced disposition than that of a policeman, Chief Pearson says.

"If he hasn't got a good disposition we can't use him. If a man can't put up with all the things that are thrown at a policeman, he's of no use to us."

"Disposition and brains — both were essential for a policeman today," he says.

"There used to be a time when a police officer was all brawn and no brain; that time has long gone by."

"Today, a policeman must be properly trained. He must have an understanding of the law. He must be familiar with modern crime-fighting methods, and be able to act quickly."

"Thirty years ago, when a complaint came to the police by mail which took four days, it didn't matter if we took another four days to do something about it. That's changed."

Chief Pearson has an idea of what the perfect policeman should be like.

"He should be a servant of the public to the best of his ability without being in servitude to the public."

He believes that some day, the old feeling of confidence in the policeman will be restored, and when that day comes, Chief Pearson will be happy.

Guerrilla Retaliation

Jews Bomb Lebanese Camps

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israeli air force moved Middle East war action to the northern front Monday, bombing Arab guerrilla positions inside Lebanon on the foothills of Mount Hermon.

The 30-minute attack, in which seven guerrilla camps were reported hit, followed four straight days of air strikes inside Jordan on the eastern front, where fighting has escalated in the last week.

The Egyptians reported a three-hour artillery duel on the western front along the Suez canal but the Israelis made no mention of it.

Monday's air strike was the second inside Lebanon in two weeks. On July 30, jets strafed and bombed Arab guerrilla concentrations around Mount Hermon which straddles the Lebanese Syrian border. In the first attack, positions inside Syria also were hit.

The Israelis claim 400 to 500 Arab guerrillas have been encamped around Mount Hermon since 1968.

The Israeli announcement of the strike said the planes attacked in retaliation for "21 terrorist acts carried out from Lebanese territory" in July.

The Lebanese government does not encourage guerrillas to operate from Lebanon for fear of Israeli reprisals such as the air-commando raid on Beirut international airport last December.

The Lebanese claim Syria has been sending the guerrillas to the Mount Hermon pocket. Lebanon acknowledged the new Israeli air attack. It said the planes raided two Lebanese border villages as well as military positions and that a number of persons were wounded.

A Beirut newspaper reported, meanwhile, that rival guerrilla groups around the southern town of Hasbaya fought gun battles recently and that four members of the Iraqi-backed Arab Liberation Front were killed. It said the other guerrilla group was the Syrian-backed Al Saika organization.

Arab Liberation Front bases in Syria were closed recently by Syrian authorities and about 200 guerrillas were reported to have been shifted across the border to Lebanon.

HAND GRENADE

In other action, eight Israelis were wounded by a hand grenade thrown by an Arab at a truck in Hebron, south of Jerusalem.

Invasion Anniversary

Czechs Sound Warning

PRAGUE (Reuters) — An interior ministry official said Monday that violent protests are planned by "enemies of socialism" to mark the first anniversary of the Soviet-led Warsaw pact invasion Aug. 20-21.

Ministry officials also disclosed plans to guard leading government figures against possible demonstrations.

State Secretary Jan Majer told a special briefing of chief editors of the Czechoslovak press that "in recent days the activity of anti-socialist, anti-party and anti-Soviet groups has increased," CTK agency reported.

"Enemies of socialism intend to use all forms of struggle, from passive resistance to acts of violence, and their aims are to weaken the unity of the Socialist community and in particular create a new situation of crisis with the Soviet Union," Majer said.

Prague radio, reporting on the press conference, said the ministry disclosed there have been a number of thefts of weapons recently.

"All possible measures have been taken with the aim of providing legal protection to all honest people who support the positive efforts of the party and state leadership and at the same time take action against those who try to mar these efforts," the officials said.

Zond Zips Home After Moon Circle

MOSCOW (AP) — The unmanned Soviet moon vehicle Zond VII photographed the lunar surface Monday, rounded the moon and is heading for earth, an official announcement said.

The craft is expected to attempt a soft landing on earth, similar to those executed by Zond V and Zond VI, probably Thursday.

The announcement confirmed an earlier report from Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory that said Zond VII had swung around the moon.

There were no details on what parts of the moon were photographed or what use will be made of the pictures.

The Zond series has been officially described as part of the Soviet program to land a man on the moon. Zond VII possibly explored landing sites.

The information released Monday indicated the craft only looped the moon and swung back toward earth, not entering into a full orbit of the moon.

The Soviet Union never has pulled an orbiting craft out of lunar gravity and brought it back to earth.

Fishboat Fire Kills Three

KODIAK, Alaska (AP) — Three men died when a Canadian halibut schooner, the BC Clipper out of Vancouver, caught fire and sank Sunday off Two-headed Island, one of the Kodiak Islands.

Five crew members were rescued. They were picked up from a rubber raft by the Percy Jo, a crab boat, and brought into Kodiak Sunday night.

The dead were identified as Winston Tucker, 50, of Vancouver, his son Clarence, 19, and Charles Stanley, 40, of New Westminster. Survivors included skipper Stan Sorenson.

The clipper had just delivered 100,000 pounds of halibut in Kodiak, and was putting out to sea.

The fire on the craft was believed to have started in the galley.

VANCOUVER - BRITISH COLUMBIA (NOW OPEN SUNDAYS)

Apollo Heroes On TV Today

HOUSTON (AP) — Starting a week of personal appearances in the United States, the Apollo 11 astronauts will talk publicly for the first time today about their historic moon landing.

Neil Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin Aldrin Jr. will hold a televised news conference starting at 8 a.m. PDT and then prepare for a Wednesday trip that will carry them from one coast to the other.

SPACE FILM

Officials said the conference will last about 90 minutes and include about 20 minutes of film taken in space and narrated by the spacemen.

Following the conference, the astronauts will attend a luncheon here honoring the "blue-collar" workers who helped put Americans on the moon.

Wednesday, they will make a 19-hour whirlwind trip across the country for parades in New York and Chicago and a dinner given by President Nixon in Los Angeles. All events will be televised.

They return to Houston about 12:15 p.m. PDT Thursday. A mid-morning ticker-tape parade Saturday through downtown Houston will be followed that night by a party at the Astro-dome.

The astronauts ended 21 days of quarantine Sunday night after final medical tests showed them unaffected by their contact with lunar dust. Twenty other persons who had been in quarantine also were released.

The spacemen spent most of Monday relaxing with their families.

Five Narcotics Agents Deny Conspiracy Case

LOS ANGELES — Five federal narcotics agents indicted on charges of conspiring to send a suspected dope peddler to prison on perjured testimony entered pleas of innocent Monday, but one pleaded guilty to a lesser charge.

The five were Arthur Mendelsohn, 45; Irving Lischutz, 41; Chris Seiz, 37; Harry Watson, 43, and Joseph Downing, 36.

Downing pleaded innocent to counts charging conspiracy and perjury, but guilty to depriving David Romero, 41, of his constitutional and civil rights.

The indictment accused Mendelsohn, a Federal Bureau of Narcotics group supervisor with 18 years' service, of inducing Lischutz, Seiz and Downing to commit perjury at Romero's trial, which resulted in his conviction Oct. 25, 1966. Watson was charged only with conspiracy and deprivation of rights.

All five were released on their own recognizance until the Sept. 10 trial.

According to U.S. Attorney Matt Byrne, the agents on May 10, 1966, were trailing Romero, whose record includes convictions of burglary in 1955, and a federal narcotics violation in 1958.

STORY MANUFACTURED?
They arrested the man after seeing him throw a packet, found to contain heroin, from his car, Byrne alleged, but felt the circumstances did not constitute probable cause for prosecution.

Byrne asserted the agents then manufactured a story of having seen Romero enter a telephone booth and of later having found a packet of heroin concealed there. Actually, Romero never entered the booth, nor was any narcotic found there, the U.S. attorney said.

Romero, who was sentenced to 15 years in prison, has since been freed on bond pending appeal.

Peeking Camper Pawed by Bear

LONGMIRE, Wash. (AP)—An Oregon man camping with his family Saturday at Paradise Valley on Mt. Ranier heard a night-time noise, unzipped his tent and got smacked right in the face with a bear paw.

Rangers said there was no record of any other serious bear attack in Mt. Ranier National Park in the past 27 years.

Kenneth Douglas, 33, Sherwood, Ore., was treated for face cuts. His injuries were not serious. Rangers tracked down the 230-pound black bear early Monday and killed it.

Clyde Lockwood, assistant chief ranger, said the Douglas family had no food in the tent, but a bear believed to be the same one had taken a swat about a week ago at a tent in which food was stored.

Lockwood said food-seeking bears are common in Paradise and neighboring campgrounds, but they have never before molested people.

He warned campers to leave no food in their tents and to clean up cooking utensils immediately after a meal so there would be no odors to attract bears.

Vancouver Coroner

'Simple' Method Told For Perfect Murders

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Coroner Glen McDonald says it is "not only possible but probable" that perfect murders are being committed in Vancouver.

"Just thinking about them scares the hell out of me," he said in an interview Sunday. He said the method is unfortunately simple.

All a person has to do to murder a drug addict is quietly slip him a "hot cap" — a capsule of pure heroin or a fatal mixture of morphine and barbiturates — and the death is recorded as an overdose, a suicide or an accidental poisoning.

Mr. McDonald said 94 deaths in Vancouver last year were attributed to an overdose of addictive drugs and all but 22 of these have been classified as accidental.

"But how can I be sure?" he asked. "Even with expert toxicological examinations, we still have trouble classifying the dead."

He said that in order to lay a murder charge the investigating officer must prove "that the addict was given the hot cap by a person who intended murder."

"This is almost impossible to establish."

Devaluation Buffer Urged in Agriculture

BRUSSELS (UPI)—The executive commission of the European Economic Community Monday put forward a plan to prevent the surprise devaluation of the French franc from upsetting the Common Market's carefully balanced agricultural price system.

The six-point proposals call on the French government to spread the full impact of devaluation on French farm prices over a period of two years by adjusting "support" price levels, taxing exports and subsidizing imports.

The in effect would rob the French farmer of the immediate advantage his produce—made cheaper by devaluation—would have over other Common Market farmers.

French franc, according to the commissions plan.

The commission's proposals also call for taxes on French agricultural exports to bring them in line with those of Common-Market countries and subsidies on imports to prevent increased food price in France.

French President Georges Pompidou said in Paris Monday he had been convinced for more than a year that a devaluation of the franc was unavoidable.

While Pompidou spoke, the government's surprise decision last Friday to devalue the franc and to freeze prices for six months was coming under fire from labor unions and from devoted Gaullist politicians.

The new franc fared well Monday in its first appearance on European money markets.

Cigarette Contracts

NBC Insisting Ads Continue

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Broadcasting Co. refused Monday to release cigarette advertisers from contracts for radio and television commercials but suggested the tobacco firms use the air time to advertise other products or for public service announcements.

NBC's refusal, coming three days after the American Broadcasting Co. took a similar stand, appeared to kill the plan by the tobacco industry to end all broadcast advertising Dec. 31.

Only the Columbia Broadcasting System has agreed to early termination of the contracts which run until September, 1970.

In its statement, NBC shifted the financial burden of halting cigarette ads on radio and television from the networks to the tobacco industry.

NBC president Julian Goodman made his announcement in a letter to Senator Frank Moss (D-Utah), chairman of a senate subcommittee studying legislation to restrict cigarette advertising because of health hazards associated with smoking.

Goodman said that with schedules planned more than a year in advance, "Precipitate removal of this business from the market place in midseason would have the most serious effect upon broadcast revenues."

Low-Yield Hydro Bonds 'Piece of Daring'

It will take Bennett "magic" to sell the new issue of B.C. Hydro parity bonds, according to some people in the investment business.

The premier surprised everyone by holding the line on borrowing costs in maintaining the parity bond interest rate at 6½ per cent for the new issue.

Most experts had considered the new rate would be 7 per cent or 7½ per cent to be in line with other top-ranking short term securities.

BOND BREAKFAST

Instead Premier Bennett, at his bond breakfast in Vancouver Monday morning, said the $50,050,000 worth of B.C. Hydro 1974 parity would have the same interest rate as the ones they are to replace.

Some investment dealers said it might be difficult to place bonds at a 6½ per cent interest rate when the banks are paying 7½ per cent on two year deposits or when the last issue of Canada bonds was just under 8 per cent.

"If these bonds sell at this price British Columbia can claim the best credit rating of any government in North America," said one bond dealer.

"It is a tremendous piece of daring, and if it is successful it should ensure a sweeping victory for the government party in the election."

ALLOTMENTS MADE

Banks, investment houses and other financial institutions have already been given allotments of the new bonds and they have up to Aug. 21 to accept or reject them.

The current issue of Canada Savings Bonds pays 6½ per cent, but the rate goes up first to 6½ and then to 7 per cent before the expiry date.

In addition the CSR issue was sold last fall before the tight money and credit squeeze put interest rates up to their present high levels.

Although the B.C. Hydro issue of $50,050,000 is a comparative modest one in size, the importance of keeping the interest rate at 6½ per cent has wider ramifications so far as the province is concerned.

If the rate had been increased, it would have been in keeping with previous government policy to raise the rate on all other B.C. parity bonds as well. There are $200,000,000 of them in four other issues.

One grumbling bond dealer said, "We have been left holding the bag. If we don't sell the bonds we will be blamed for not making a real effort; if we try too hard we may have critical clients."

EUROPEAN CONCERN

Stock market reaction to the devaluation of the French franc was scarcely a factor in prices in the first sessions since the Paris announcement was made Friday evening.

Stock prices were slightly higher on the Paris and London stock market, London reversing an early drop to finish on the plus side.

At New York and on the Canadian exchanges the averages were lower, but they were in keeping with the recent performance of lowering prices and did not seem to reflect any concern about the possible spread of a new monetary crisis.

"It looks as if the devaluation of the franc is primarily a concern for the member countries in the European Common market," commented one local stock dealer.

COAL MINE REOPENS

Anvil Mining, which is preparing a lead-zinc mining and milling operation at Ross River in the Yukon, has taken over the Yukon Coal Company's disused coal mine at Carmacks.

The coal will be used to dry concentrates and in feed coal-fired boilers for plant heating.

The mine was closed down three years ago when it lost its two main customers—the old paddlesteamers which used to ply the Yukon River, and the United Keno WIR silver mine at Elsa which has been converted to oil burning.

In taking over the mine Anvil has assumed responsibility for a federal loan under which the coal mine had been helped into productivity.

DELIVERIES GROW

Daily deliveries by Trans-Mountain Oil Pipe Line Company in July were 304,712 barrels, up from 282,104 barrels a day in June. The company expected to average 327,000 barrels a day in August.

LEAD PRICE HIGHER

A further increase in Cominco's Canadian lead price is reported for July, when the rate of 15.5 cents a pound was up from 15.3 cents in June.

The price of zinc remained at the June level of 14.5 cents a pound. A year ago the Cominco price for lead was 13 cents and for zinc 13.5 cents.

Canadian Pacific Investments, holder of the majority of Cominco shares, expects Cominco earnings in the second half to be substantially greater than in the first half.

MERGER COMPLETED

Trading for Royal Securities Corp. will be conducted by Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith on the Toronto Stock Exchange following completion of the takeover of the Canadian company.

Stock Exchange rules do not permit two associated member firms to trade separately on the exchange floor.

In the Montreal Exchange, Royal Securities will continue to trade pending the formation of a Canadian subsidiary of Merrill, Lynch which will then take over Royal's trading on that exchange.

BANK SEES RECESSION

The First National City Bank of New York scoffs at the notion that inflation is out of control in the U.S.

In its August economic letter, the bank says the restraints imposed in late 1968 and early 1969 are only now having their full effects, and the further restraints applied during the spring and summer of this year will become apparent in a few months time.

"It is a matter of simple arithmetic that if we were to continue decelerating at the same rate as we have since mid-1968 we would be in a recession by early next year," warns the bank.

NEW NEONEX MERGER

The merging of Hunt Transport of Vancouver with Neonex International will give that company a freight transportation system from Quebec to British Columbia.

Hunt is a privately-owned company with routes as far east as Regina and Saskatoon. Neonex already owns Reimer Express Lines of Winnipeg.

Nixon's Florida Neighbor

Loan Extension Attacked

WASHINGTON — Rep. Wright Patman, a Texas Democrat, has accused the Small Business Administration of favoritism toward President Nixon's close friend C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo and detailed handling of an $80,000 loan in an effort to sustain his charge.

The loan in question was made in 1962, more than six years before the election of Nixon, whose winter residence at Key Biscayne, Fla., is next door to Rebozo's. There was no mention by Patman of the friendship between the president and Rebozo, who is the president of a Key Biscayne bank.

Instead, Patman focussed his fire on SBA officials who cleared the loan on Feb. 13, 1962, six days after Rebozo visited SBA's Washington headquarters, despite contrary advice from members of the agency's regional office in Miami. The loan's term has been extended twice to the 10-year legal maximum.

"The loan should not have been made in the first place and the unwarranted extensions of the maturities on the loan quite clearly are grounds for collecting payment in full at this time," Patman declared.

A final extension, to May 1, 1972, was granted in July, 1968, Patman said, "during a period when SBA was refusing loan applications from small businessmen all over the country because they were faced with a critical shortage of lendable funds."

Meatcutters Plan Action

Bakery Pact Accepted

VANCOUVER (CP)—A union official has announced 750 bakers on Vancouver Island and the British Columbia Lower Mainland have accepted a two-year contract from seven bakery firms.

The men voted 87 per cent for the contract, which provides a $15-a-week pay increase the first year and a further $13 in the second. Base rate under the old contract, which expired May 31, was $14.50 a week.

The contract also provides a $200-a-month retirement pension. Bakeries involved are Macdonalds Consolidated, Safeway, Super-Valu, McGavin, Toastmaster, Mother Hubbard, Weston and IGA.

Meanwhile a spokesman for locked out meatcutters in the Lower Mainland said they plan to "intensify" their picketing this week.

Union spokesman George Johnson declined details of picketing plans. The meatcutters have kept 30 Super-Valu stores closed by pickets, out of 103 supermarket branches involved in a contract dispute.

Latest attempt to end the 2½-month dispute ended Friday when meatcutters, seeking reduction of their work week to four days from five, plus higher pay, walked out of a meeting.

Housing Starts Higher

OTTAWA (CP)—Housing starts during July reached 14,955 bringing the total for the first seven months of 1969 to 100,655 units. Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. announced Monday.

The preliminary figures published by the federal government housing agency show 1969 running 15,000 units, or 17.4 per cent, above the same period last year.

This includes a 20-per-cent increase in apartment units and other multiple dwellings and an 11.4 per cent increase in single detached homes over the same seven month period in 1968.

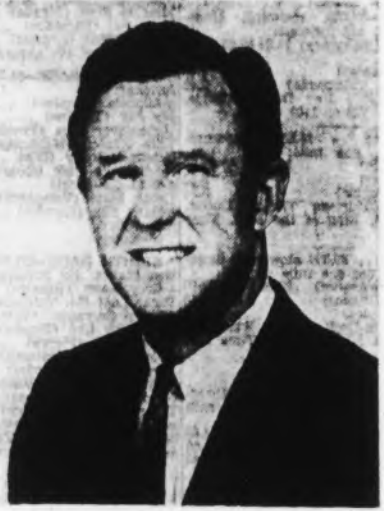

Actual starts of single detached houses in July were 4,500, up slightly from 4,487 in July, 1968. Multiple dwelling starts declined to 10,455 in July from 10,830 in July last year.

The July figures represent an over-all seasonally adjusted rate of 187,300 units annually.

Income Up For Labor

OTTAWA (CP) — Estimated labor income during June totaled $3,261,300,000, an increase of $21,800,000 over May, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Monday.

The estimate for May was $3,239,500,000, an increase of $34,900,000 over April.

Huston Big Help In Bate Triumph

In height and stature, Gordie Huston of Bate Construction is the largest player on the team. He is also tops in production.

And as a result, Victoria has its first B.C. senior "A" men's softball championship since Joe Bryant led George Hotel to the title in 1957.

Huston, six-foot, eight-inch 377-pounder, won the most-valuable-player award for leading his club to the title Sunday at Central Park.

Bates came back through the losers' bracket to shutout defending-champions Vancouver Molsons, 3-0, and 1-0, to take the double-knockout tournament.

Huston, beaten, 3-1, by Molsons earlier Sunday in the winners' bracket final, came back in the deciding game to scatter six hits and drive in the only run of the game.

The big right-hander struck out seven batters in the championship game and twice got out of situations where Molsons had a runner on third base.

Huston got the first of only three Bate hits off loser Jack Kine in the third inning.

Tom Bourne led off the inning by reaching base on an error and Don Lancaster sacrificed him to second base. Huston then brought him home with a single.

Bates also managed only three hits in the previous game but Molsons suffered their first loss when they couldn't score. Barry Jackson, who allowed 10 hits but got out of a bases-loaded jam in the first inning and had men on third base on two other occasions, proved tough in the clutch for the victory.

PEARCE GETS WIN

Brian Pearce had a four-hitter for Bates when they won the losers' bracket final, 4-2, over Johnston Motors of Vancouver.

"It's tough to give your pitchers enough work during the regular schedule," said winning manager Lew McCorkill before the start of the finals. "But you have to have three pitchers for tournaments."

The depth certainly paid off.

TO CALGARY NOW

Bates now advance to the B.C.-Alberta championship in Calgary next weekend. The winner of that series plays in the Canadian championships at Saskatoon later in the month.

In other Sunday action, Johnston's eliminated Vancouver Merchants, B.C. representatives in the Canadian Summer Games, 3-1, and Victoria Red Lion, 1-0. Merchants eliminated Prince George, 2-0.

Gordon Hartley of Molsons was chosen the outstanding pitcher and shortstop Brian Avery of Johnston was the leading hitter with a .468 average. Catcher Ken Campbell of Merchants was named the most-gentlemanly player.

Cowichan XI Stretches Cricket Lead

Cowichan defeated Castaways, 212-101, Sunday at Shawanigan Lake School to increase their lead in the Victoria and District Cricket Association.

Tim Brierley, with 87 runs, and David Auld, 59, had a first-wicket stand of 155 for Cowichan while Peter Wilson added 32 not out to the declared total for four wickets.

Brierley then took three wickets for six runs. Ahstair Murray took four for 22 and Jim Longridge took three for 38 in dismissing Castaways.

Gail Moore Matches Par As B.C. Team Takes Lead

By PAUL SUTHER

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — Gail Harvey Moore of Vancouver jumped into a big lead in the first qualifying round of the Canadian women's golf championships Monday, shooting a par 73 over the windswept Moncton Golf and Country Club course.

Mrs. Moore, also a member of defending champion British Columbia in senior interprovincial team play, fired a three-over 38 on the first nine and came home with a blazing three-under 25.

Three strokes behind were Monique Langlais of Quebec and Marilyn Palmer of Vancouver, each with 16 over the opening 18 holes, while Marlene Stewart Streif of Fonthill, Ont., 1968 open and close champion, had a 77.

B.C. TAKES LEAD

Mrs. Moore helped put the British Columbia team in the lead for the senior interprovincial team event with a total score of 231.

The three best scores of each four-member team are included in the total.

Three strokes behind with 234 was Ontario, followed by Quebec with 240.

Quebec finished second last year behind British Columbia, Ontario was third.

The senior team champion will be decided today.

The Ontario twosome of Andrea Stoddart and Lisa King turned in first-round scores of 81 and 82 respectively to lead the junior interprovincial team event.

Miss Stoddart, of Oak Ridge, was also the early leader in the contest for individual junior honors.

Team-mate Lisa King of London and the British Columbia team of Helen Marlatt of Chilliwack and Holly Botham of Pitt Meadows were tied for second in the individual race with 85.

The four titles at stake during the week-long tournament are the 36-hole, medal-play junior individual, junior interprovincial team and senior interprovincial team titles to be decided today, and the match-play amateur title Aug. 13-16.

However, by about 10 a.m. the wind had picked up, clearing the cloud and drying the course.

Swift says

“Jog a jaded appetite with something great to eat”

Here's how

Sometimes, appetites do need a little encouragement . . . and that's where Swift's Premium Meats come in! They're so full of flavour . . . so fresh every time . . . so easy to prepare in so many new and interesting ways. Try our recipes and you'll see what we mean.

Swift's Premium Bacon Shortcake

Combine 2 cups biscuit mix with 1 egg, slightly beaten, $\frac{3}{4}$ cup milk and 1 cup grated cheddar cheese. Blend well. Spoon batter into a large circle on a buttered cookie sheet. Top with more grated cheese, and 3 thinly sliced onions. Arrange strips of Swift's Premium Bacon lattice-style on top. Bake at 400°F. for 30-35 min. Serves 4-6.

Why is it that the sound and smell of Swift's Premium Bacon, sizzling in a pan, just naturally makes you hungry? Well, for one thing . . . the aroma is so good. And when you taste it, you know why! Only Swift's Premium Bacon is slow-smoked and mild sugar cured . . . and that makes it pretty special.

Mississippi Wieners

Score 1 lb. Swift's Premium Wieners on one side as you would for ham. Stud with cloves and drizzle with honey or molasses. Sprinkle with brown sugar and broil until golden. Serve with sweet potatoes and a green vegetable or salad.

Swift's Premium Wieners—plump full of meaty goodness from end to end . . . with a special touch of spices to give them that extra special flavour!

Prem Saucy Baked Beans

Combine two 15 oz. cans baked beans with 3 tbsp. minced onion (fried in butter if you like), 2 tbsp. pickle relish, 1 tbsp. chili sauce. Cut Prem into slices and set on top. Drizzle with 2 tbsp. honey and sprinkle with grated cheese. Bake at 350°F. for 30-35 min.

We call Prem “luncheon meat”, but when you dress it up like this, it's all ready for a party! Prem has that extra good flavour because it's made with pork and added lean beef!

Swift's, Swift's Premium and Prem are registered trade marks of Swift Canadian Co., Limited.

Swift makes everything better...
including appetites.

Martin relaxes with bruised hand

Twins' Scrap a Dandy by Any Version

Martin lowers boom on Boswell

MINNEAPOLIS — It was staged last Wednesday, it wasn't publicly admitted until Sunday and there was a different version Monday, but there's no question but that it must have been a dandy scrap.

It featured three members of the Minnesota Twins, Western Division leaders in the American League, and the champion appears to be manager Billy Martin.

He was credited with a knockout over pitcher Dave Boswell, who rated a technical knockout over outfielder Bob Allison in the semi-final.

Boswell, who was sent home to recuperate and summer down, reportedly needed 20 stitches to close facial wounds, Allison had several teeth chipped, a black eye and a sore back, allegedly from being kicked.

Martin, who started out as the peacemaker, had a badly-swollen right hand which needed seven stitches.

It started in Detroit after pitching-coach Art Fowler reported to Martin that Boswell had not run his normal 18 to 20 laps preceding the game in Detroit, leaving the field after taking only two laps.

STARTED IN CAFE

Following the game, Martin ran into Boswell in a restaurant and told him that "I wanted to talk to him next day about the laps."

"At about 11:30," Martin said, "Boswell left the place and said he was on his way to get that squalor, Fowler."

"Allison went outside to try and stop Boswell and was standing there with his hands in his pockets when Boswell hit him with a Sunday punch, knocked him down and almost out."

Martin said he told Boswell not to report to the park in Baltimore for the next series because of the condition of his face.

"I didn't want him to be embarrassed around the other players," Martin said.

DENIES ATTACK

Boswell Monday denied that he had attacked Martin.

"He isn't telling the truth if he said I went after him," the 24-year-old righthander said.

Boswell claimed that Allison said "If you're going to be tough about this why don't you hit me?"

"I was in a bad mood, so I hit him," Boswell recounted. "Allison didn't have his hands in his pockets as he was quoted in Baltimore. I'll admit I hit him first. After I hit him, I wasn't going to let him up. He's too big for me to handle so I did everything I could to keep him down."

MARTIN'S A BANTAM

Boswell is six feet, three inches tall and weighs 185 pounds. Allison is an inch taller and 35 pounds heavier while Martin is five feet 11 inches and weighs in at 170 pounds.

"The next thing I remember," Boswell continued, "there were three or four people holding me and Allison was still on the ground. I remember holding my hand against the wall but I don't remember going after Martin. I do remember a foot kicking me in the face. After that I recalled waking up once in the hospital and another time in the hotel room."

"The doctors who examined me at the hospital asked me what had hit me with a pipe. I've been in a lot of fights, I've been hit many times. But nobody did the damage to my left eye they did."

Boswell was in a fight with a fan earlier in the season and a near fight with team mate Rod Carew in June after he had accused the second-baseman of losing a game by being late to take a throw.

That time, Allison took Boswell out to dinner to calm him down.

POURS ON OIL

Both sides were apparently willing to try and smooth things over.

"I think we can iron this out in a fairly way when we have a conference," Martin said. "Then Boswell can pitch and do the job he's capable of doing."

"As far as I am concerned, it's forgotten," Allison said. "I have no grudge against him. I'm sure Dave thinks like the rest of us — that he's sorry it happened."

Boswell said he still wanted to pitch for the Twins this year, but for no longer.

"This will be my last year with the Twins," he said. "I'm going to stick with this. I won't change my mind."

Cox Just Hangs On To Win CPGA Title

VANCOUVER — Bob Cox just made it Sunday at the Point Grey Golf and Country Club, holing a birdie putt on the last hole to win the Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship by one stroke over Ron Willey of Vancouver.

A 29-year-old Richmond pro who had previously won the Saskatchewan and Alberta Open tournaments, Cox entered the final round 12 strokes under par and four strokes ahead of Willey.

SERIOUS CHALLENGES

Before his birdie putt rolled in to give him a four-over-par 76 and a 72-hole total of 280, he was facing a playoff with Willey and had been seriously challenged also by Toronto-veteran Al Balding and Moose Norman.

"I'm just glad I ran out of holes," Cox said after accepting the $5,000 first prize. "If there had been another two holes, Ron might have caught and passed me. That's what I call backing in. I choked up pretty bad."

What had been expected to be an easy last round for Cox turned into a tense finish as Cox started to slip with a double-bogey six on the 414-yard seventh hole.

That left him 10 under par for the tournament and moved Willey within two strokes, Balding within four and Norman within five.

The margin was the same at the turn for Willey and Balding and Norman was six strokes out after a bogey four on the eighth hole.

Cox bogied 13th, Willey bogied the 11th and birdied the 12th and Balding had birdies on the 10th and 13th and a bogey on the 11th. That left Cox nine under, Willey eight under and Balding seven under par. Norman, about to make his move, was four under.

Cox parred 14, Willey and Balding both had bogies and Norman had a birdie. On the 15th, Cox had a bogey, Willey and Balding had pars and Norman another birdie to leave Cox eight under, Willey seven under and Balding and Norman both six under par.

NORMAN WITHIN STROKE

Norman got the only par on the 16th to move him within a stroke of the lead along with Willey with Balding two strokes back.

Cox, Willey and Balding all had par threes on the 17th but Norman dropped back when he flubbed a two-foot putt as the crowd stampeded to get into position to watch the last hole.

Playing ahead of Cox, Willey and Balding both had chances for eagles on the easy par-five last hole. Balding missed by inches with his long putt and then Willey hung one on the lip from inside 10 feet.

Both got their birdies, Willey ending seven under par and Balding six under.

FINE SECOND SHOT

Cox, needing a birdie to avoid a playoff, hit a tremendous second shot to get on the putting surface. Norman also made it in two shots and missed by inches his try for an eagle which would have given him a playoff chance.

Cox putted cautiously and stopped two feet short. But he stroked the tricky putt in.

Officials toughened the course for the final round, and their efforts didn't meet with much favor.

Balding said the pin and tee placements "were really ridiculous and Norman commented that the tees were placed so far back that he was hitting the tall grass with his backswing."

BIGGEST PAYDAY

Willey was playing in his first tournament of the year and the $3,500 he won for being the runner-up was his biggest payday.

Balding and Norman, who finished two strokes back, both won $2,000. Then came the Homeniuk brothers, who both finished strongly. Stan from Dauphin, finished with a 69 for 284 and fifth-place money of $1,200 while Wilf, from Winnipeg, finished with a 70 to finish with 286 and win $1,000.

Defending champion George Knudson, who won last year with a sensational 20-under-par 288 at Boischatel, Que., finished nine over at 297 and won $210.

Two Victorians and a former Victorian finished at 291 to win $432.50 each. Bill Wakeham had a last-round 73; Ron MacLeod, who plays out of Jasper in the summer months, had a last-round 71 along with Dick Munn, the Point Grey pro.

More Islanders Qualify for Meet

VANCOUVER — Five more Vancouver Island athletes qualified for the Canadian track and field championships later this month in Victoria during Sunday's events in the Western Canadian championships.

That brings the total island representation to 10 athletes for the Aug. 30 and 31 Canadian finals at Centennial Stadium.

In addition, Penny May of Victoria Track Club and Anne Langdale of Victoria Mercuries each qualified for a second event.

Miss May, winner of the 100-metre hurdles Saturday, took the 200-metre hurdles Sunday in 28.2 seconds.

Miss Langdale finished second to Vancouver's Irene Piotrowski for the second straight day although she was timed in an identical 24.8 seconds in the 200 metres with the Olympic-team member.

Also earning berths Sunday were Victorians Bob McLaren, Roger Ruth and Gerard Dumas, who all compete for Vancouver Olympic Club, and Victoria Track Club members Dave Weicker and Bill Clark.

PERSONAL BEST

McLaren won the 40-metre hurdles, the event he starred in for Canada in the Pan-American Games, in an easy 54.1 seconds.

Dumas and the 41-year-old Ruth both qualified in the pole vault.

Weicker ran a personal best of 1:51.5 to place fourth in the 800 metres. He qualified for the Canadians because winner Barry Cunningham was one of two already eligible for the event through last year's national championships.

The top two from the previous year plus the top three from both the East and West championships qualify.

Clark finished fifth in the high jump but qualifies because winner Wilf Wedmann is the defending champion and Roger Mercer, who qualified last year, has retired.

BESTS RECORD

Wedman won with six feet, eight inches and then in practice bettered his Canadian mark twice with leaps of six feet, 11 inches, a half-inch above his recognized standard. Only jumps set in competition stand for records.

Outstanding competitor in the Western meet was judged to be Norm Terrese of Vancouver, who won the 1500 metres in 3:46.4 minutes and 5,000 metres in 14:22.0.

The other Islanders to gain berths Saturday were Jean Baldwin of Nanaimo, Stephanie Corby of Esquimalt Track Club and Larry Corbett of VTC.

Ken Still's 65 Wins Milwaukee Open

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ken Still, a happy-go-lucky, talkative veteran from Tacoma broke out of a massive log jam with a brilliantly-played 65 Sunday to win $20,000 first prize in the $100,000 Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

Playing his ninth year on the tour, Still finished with an 11-under-par 277 and virtually as the last from which the 12-man team will be selected for the competition against the British team next month.

Still, an avid baseball fan who often interrupts his round to chat with fans in the gallery and ask about the latest scores, finished two strokes ahead of Gary Player.

Player finished with a 65 and a pair of split birdies. "It was terrible," the South African star said. "I was sured myself of a berth on the U.S. Ryder Cup team."

He vaulted into 10th place on squinting down to line up a putt on the 18th and — zap — there they went. The best thing I could do was make a joke of it."

But he didn't make a joke of the putt. While watching fans giggled, Player snaked in a 40-footer for a birdie which gave him a share of the lead and, as it turned out, a one-stroke margin over Lee Elder, who shot a final-round 66 and wound up in third place with 280.

BRAKE INTO LEAD

Still, playing several two-somes back, broke out of a tie for the lead almost immediately with birdies on the 15th and 16th. Then he salvaged a par on the 18th after his second shot went over the green and the ball went into the scorer's tent.

Player's $11,400 share of the purse pushed his 1969 tournament winnings past $100,000.

Still, who previously won the Citrus Open in March, now has won $68,237.84 this year.

Arnold Palmer finished well back at 287, winning $910 but no points in his effort to make the Ryder Cup for the fifth time. He will now have to finish first or second in the USPGA tournament to get enough points for selection.

Haslam Wins In U.S.

MONROE, Wash. — Victoria's Roy Haslam won the trophy dash and placed third in both the fast heat and main event races Sunday of a National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing meet at Evergreen Speedway.

Haslam held off main-event winner Fred Hay in the trophy dash and defeated NASCAR point leader Harry Jefferson for third in the feature race.

Victoria's Ross Surgenor was sixth in the main event and second in the "B" main.

Carnarvon Keeps B.C. Pony Title

Carnarvon All-Stars, who last year became the first Canadian team to play in the Pony League Baseball world series, continued their domination of provincial honors Sunday at Carnarvon Park.

The Victorians continued on the unbeaten path in the playoffs by downing Kennedy, 2-0, in the B.C. final, a double-knockout competition.

All-Stars now advance to the Western Canada finals, a best-of-three series with Saskatoon Red Sox, which start Friday at Delta. The winner there advances to the world series at Washington, Pa., which start Aug. 20.

Frank Dalziel was in good control throughout the final, allowing two hits and facing only 22 batters in seven innings, one above the minimum number.

Dalziel struck out eight batters. He lost his no-hitter in the fourth inning when Warren Noyes singled, but was later out trying to steal home.

Carnarvons scored both their runs in the first inning when Steve Forslund and Wayne Simpson came in on an error on a ball hit by Craig Rowley.

EARLIER WINS

The host club advanced to the finals with a 3-1 victory over North Coquitlam and 12-3 victory over Terrace.

Kennedy, dropped into the losers' bracket by Little Mountain, reached the final with a 6-2 victory over Terrace and 8-4 victory over Little Mountain.

Richey Captures Canadian Crown

TORONTO (CP) — "I always play hard," said redheaded Cliff Richey after wearing down Butch Bucholz 6-4, 5-7, 6-4 to take the men's singles title in the Canadian open tennis championships Sunday.

"I never get tired." Second-seeded Richey, brother of top-ranked United States women's singles player Nancy Richey, dominated the match. Bucholz' game fell apart after Richey broke his serve to take a 3-0 lead in the fourth set.

"I thought Butch played very well except for the fourth set," said the 22-year-old independent pro from San Angelo, Tex.

In the women's singles, top-ranked Canadian Faye Urban of Windsor, Ont., outplayed second-seed Vicki Berner of Vancouver on all fronts, 6-2, 6-0.

The two came back as a pair to take the women's doubles crown for the fourth straight year with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Vivienne String and Jane O'Hara of Toronto.

John Newcombe of Australia and Ron Holmberg of Highland Falls, N.Y., won the men's doubles 6-3, 6-4, over Bucholz and Ray Moore of South Africa. The four professionals all are under contract to the same Dallas, Tex., agency.

Honors in the mixed doubles went to Bill Higgins of the Bahamas and Andree Martin of Montreal. They defeated Harry Fauquier of Toronto and Mary McAnally of London, England, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2.

The men's singles title brought Richey $2,000 in prize money. Bucholz received $1,400. Prizes of $1,000 each went to losing semi-finalists Newcombe and Mike Belkin, the Canadian closed champion, and $650 each to the losers in the quarter-finals: Moore, Lester Sack of Clarksdale, Miss., Dick Crealey of Australia and Panchito Guzman of Ecuador.

Bucholz defeated top-seed Newcombe Saturday 3-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-0 after Newcombe developed back and leg cramps.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved. Actual reduction of retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dine) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dine is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

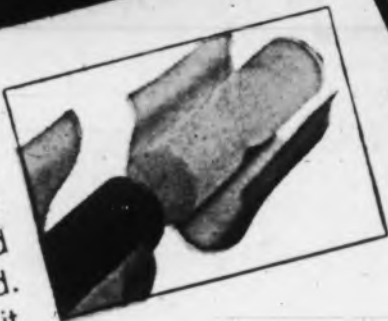

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Fifth Derby Prize of Year

Frank Jenvey did it again. He took first prize in the Taarlip Indian Band's derby in Saanich Inlet at the weekend with a tiny 6.4-pound spring (chinook), salmon from Coles Bay.

That's the same spot where he caught his salmon that won the Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association quail-ying derby fishoff a couple of weeks ago.

He has won four other derby prizes this year, all with fish from Coles Bay, and last year he had 11 prizewinning fish from Coles Bay, including the leader of the fishoff derby.

Mr. Jenvey's 6.4-pound winner is an indication of how fishing fell off in Saanich Inlet at the weekend. Some are blaming a visit from the killer whales.

The whales—about 40 of them that visited Cowichan Bay in midweek—are being blamed for a slowdown in fishing in that area, although it started to pick up again Sunday.

With the Cowichan Ladder Derby closing Saturday evening, pretty well any spring (chinook) salmon will win a place on the 50-rung ladder.

Only 34 rungs are filled, the bottom rung by a 3.14-pounder landed by Jim Quayle, whose wife caught a 26.13-pounder last week to win first place in the Ladder Derby for that week. Vivian Purney took second place for senior anglers with a 17.6-pounder and H. C. D. Johnston of Victoria won the hidden weight prize with an 8.8-pounder.

Only one junior, Laurie Bell of Mesachie Lake, weighed in a fish last week and his was only a 2.4-pounder, but big enough to win him $10. Top fish on the ladder is still Jodi Williams' 33.12-pounder.

Sentence Today for Theft

A 20-year-old man of no fixed address pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of theft over $50 and was remanded for sentence until this morning.

David R. Cole appeared before Judge William Ostler in Victoria Provincial Court on a charge of car theft.

Court was told the accused stole a car from Robert Hind of 710 Vancouver and was arrested by Saanich police on his way to Sidney.

Prosecutor John Macintyre told court Cole had served a previous sentence for car theft.

The accused said he was released from prison about 11

Court Parade

A 48-year-old man was fined $50 after he pleaded guilty to consuming liquor in a public place.

David Thomas of 2941 Bridge told court he didn't remember the incident because he was "probably too intoxicated."

Court was told the accused was arrested at the rear entrance of 1618 Store where he had been found with five full bottles of beer, two empties and one partially filled bottle.

"The accused was intoxicaated," a police officer testified.

Wayne G. Grey, 22, of no fixed address, was remanded until this morning for sentence after he pleaded guilty to a charge of vagrancy.

Stay on the road to prosperity

In 1952, the people of British Columbia narrowly averted a dangerous turn to the left when they elected our first Social Credit Government. The wisdom of that decision has been proved over and over again during the past 17 years.

Under the Bennett Government, British Columbia has enjoyed 17 years of growth and prosperity unmatched in Canada. Wage levels are the nation's highest . . . Industrial development generates more and better jobs throughout the province . . . social programs, including low-cost medical aid, offer vitally-needed benefits to every citizen.

Now, British Columbia faces another critical election! When you cast your ballot on August 27, don't risk a dead-end turn to the 'left' and the heavy-handed policies of state socialism.

Be sure to keep our Province on the road to continued growth and prosperity.

Return the Bennett Team!

On August 27—vote for your Social Credit Candidate

BRITISH COLUMBIA SOCIAL CREDIT CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Three Facing Charges For Big Campaign Signs

From CP

Three North Vancouver men have been summoned to appear in court Thursday, accused of allowing oversized campaign signs for the Aug. 27 British Columbia election, on private property.

Named in summonses, issued under a bylaw requiring city permits for signs larger than four square feet, are L. C. Reusch, Harry Ryttersgaard and Terence Simpson.

The summonses followed warnings last week by bylaw enforcement officer John Bruckner that residents would be charged if oversized signs supporting NDP candidate Rod Dickinson were not removed.

Maximum penalty under the bylaw is $100. NDP campaign workers in North Vancouver, Seymour riding said they will challenge the legality of the bylaw.

Meanwhile, two NDP candidates said Sunday they have sent a telegram to Regional Development Minister Jean Marchand, seeking inclusion of northwest B.C. in the new federal program of designated regions for economic expansion.

INDUSTRY NEEDED

James Manly of Prince Rupert and Skeena candidate Harry Robertson said the area's economy is based on lumber, fishing and minerals and there is a "pressing need" for secondary and manufacturing industries involving these resources.

Sunday, a sea-sick pilot kept NDP leader Tom Berger from a campaign rally in Dawson Creek.

Mr. Berger was in a party taken to Williston Lake, behind the W. A. C. Bennett Dam, 500 miles north of Vancouver, to inspect debris in the filling lake.

Pilot Nick Bloomfield, 26, of Prince George, remained in the aircraft while others went ashore. After 90 minutes on the choppy water, he became seasick. Mr. Berger insisted he rest in a bunkhouse on the shore until he recovered and the rally had to be cancelled.

In Trail, Robert Sommers, former provincial forestry minister, who had said he was considering running as an independent in the Rossland-Trail constituency, announced Sunday he will not run.

'Terrible Panic'

Storm Rips Tents At State Fair

WEST ALLIS, Wis. (UPI) — At least 134 persons were treated at hospitals late Monday after a violent wind and rain storm hit the Wisconsin state fair, collapsing some tents and downing power lines.

Authorities at the two hospitals where the injured were taken said almost all were treated and released and the few that remained were not seriously injured.

An unknown number of persons were treated at the fair's first aid station.

Lonnie Heibler, an off-duty Milwaukee policeman who was inside a tent when it came down, said, "there was terrible panic. People were trampled all over the place."

"A huge gust of wind lifted the tent up and tore the top in two. Water gushed inside and the wind hurled park benches through the air."

The hit-and-run storm raced through the fairgrounds in this Milwaukee suburb about 3:30 p.m., shortly after fair officials announced that attendance for the day — children's day — had reached 101,456 as of 3 p.m.

Meanwhile a toll of four dead and 243 injured was counted up in the wake of a killer tornado that bounced through the Cincinnati, Ohio, district Saturday night.

Carelessness Cause of Fires

The B.C. Forest Protection Service Monday announced 52 new fires broke out in the province over the weekend, most of them caused by carelessness.

A 400-acre fire was also reported burning out of control in logging slash and standing timber in the Kamloops fire district near the community of Oliver. The service said there was no danger to the community.

A spokesman said three fires were burning out of control in the Prince George district about 100 miles northeast of Fort St. John, and were being fanned by winds. All three fires were man-caused, the spokesman said, and have so far blackened 815 acres.

There were 159 fires burning throughout the province.

In the Vancouver district there were 17 fires burning, nine of them new. The hazard was reported low to moderate. The fire hazard in the remainder of the province was reported as low to moderate except for south Okanagan, Cranbrook and the Peace River areas, where the hazard was high to extreme.

Spectators Searched

Tight Security Marks Kenya Death Hearing

NAIROBI (AP) — A Kikuyu tribesman charged with the murder of Kenyan political leader Tom Mboya appeared in court under unprecedented security Monday for a preliminary hearing.

Police ringed the courtroom and searched all spectators. A senior police official apologized for searching newspapermen.

The defendant, Nahaashon Isaac Njenga Njorge, sat in the jury box, flanked by six guards.

An official said 92 witnesses would be called.

The state introduced more than 20 pieces of evidence, including a .38-calibre revolver, fingerprint cards and a volume of testimony taken during the investigation of the murder.

Mboya, 38, Kenya's minister of planning and economic development, was shot at close range as he walked out of a Nairobi drug store July 5. Njorge was charged with the assassination two weeks later.

Faulty Cars Recalled

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. announced Monday the recall of 110,000 cars and trucks built during a two-month period last spring in four plants in Canada and the United States.

A company spokesman for Ford said the vehicles—standard Fords, Mavericks and light trucks—were recalled because of faulty brake fluid.

In Canada, 415 Fords and 4,482 Mavericks were being recalled. None of the faulty trucks were sold in this country. The cars were manufactured in Chicago, Ill., Wayne, Mich., and St. Thomas, Ont.

Vehicles manufactured at a fourth Ford plant in Dallas, Tex., were distributed only in the U.S.

Dr. G. Scott Wallace

It is now accepted that a general hospital should encompass several types of beds, providing intensive care, coronary care, acute care, extended care. To me, a taxpayer, like you the readers, it is clear that a gap exists in providing post-acute beds for the appropriate care of patients no longer seriously ill, but too sick to go home. Creation of such wards could be achieved with relative ease and remarkable speed since the type of construction and the complexity of wiring, plumbing and installation of fixtures would be simpler than for acute bed wards. The capital cost of construction would also be less. Providing post-acute beds in substantial numbers would greatly increase the rate of turnover in the acute beds, with a consequent rapid reduction of the present lengthy waiting lists. Once the backlog has been demolished, I am convinced that the precise number of new acute beds required, would prove to be much smaller than anyone has hitherto suggested.

The recent approval by the Regional Hospital Board for the construction of TEMPORARY post-acute beds costing $410,000, is not a wise use of taxpayers' money since the post-acute type of bed must become a PERMANENT integral, economic part of every general hospital and a permanent facility of this nature can be created almost as rapidly as the proposed temporary unit.

As with all simple solutions, people will ultimately be saying, "why did we not introduce post-acute beds years ago?"

REGULAR AND KINGS 20'S AND 25'S

The next time some personnel manager says you're too old,

Fight back.

You can, you know.

Pity is, Too many folks accept discrimination. Too many expect their age or sex to lose them job opportunities and fair pay. Too many expect their ancestry or skin colour to deny them common privileges and decent consideration.

It's time to fight back.

In British Columbia, you have rights. And your government protects those rights.

In June, 1969, the Province of British Columbia proclaimed The Human Rights Act for the promotion and protection of the fundamental rights of every individual in this province.

The Act makes it unlawful to:

Discriminate in hiring, continuing employment, membership in a trade union, because of race, religion, sex, colour, nationality, ancestry, place of origin, or because of age if between 45 and 65.

Discriminate in seeking or advertising for employees.

Discriminate in renting or selling houses or commercial property.

Discriminate in providing accommodation, services, or facilities where the public is customarily admitted.

Discriminate by paying women lower wages than men for substantially the same work, done in the same establishment.

Leslie Peterson introduced this much-needed legislation because, as Minister of Labour, he saw it his duty to make sure every British Columbian gets a fair shake.

The Act has teeth. Now that it is passed, the provincial government has appointed a Human Rights Director to handle complaints, and a Human Rights Commission to enforce the Act and deal with offenders.

If you'd like to know more about Human Rights in British Columbia or if you have a complaint, Les Peterson wants to hear from you. Write him through The Director, Human Rights Branch, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C., and help us keep British Columbia free of discrimination.

Drifter, or One of Beautiful People

Youth Freed in Two Cultist Slayings

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police Monday released a 19-year-old caretaker they had held for questioning in one of two cultist-style murder spree that took seven lives during the weekend.

Freed for lack of evidence was William Garretson, who was arrested Saturday at the home in the swank suburb of Bel Air where police discovered the "ritualistic" slaying of actress Sharon Tate and four other persons.

"We feel quite certain," said Sgt. Dan Cooke, "that Garretson had nothing to do" with the slaying of a super-market owner and his wife whose bodies were found Sunday night at their home seven miles away.

Garretson was taken into custody more than 16 hours before the couple returned after a water skiing trip with relatives, a daughter said.

Hooded victims, slayings and the word "PIG" scrawled in blood were among similarities between the two multiple killings, but authorities said they had no further evidence they were the work of the same killer or killers.

Detectives said they were seeking a man whose name "came up in conversation" with Garretson, but they gave no details.

"There is a similarity," said police Sgt. Bryce Houchin. "But whether it's the same suspect or a copycat, we just don't know."

Police said as many as three persons could have been involved in the five slayings at the home rented for Miss Tate by her husband, film director Roman Polanski.

The bodies of Leno LaBianca, 44, and his wife, Rosemary, 38, owners of six Gateway Markets, were found in the living room and bedroom of their $150,000 home near Griffith Park. Both wore night clothes.

LaBianco was on his back, his hands tied behind him and with a long handled barbeque fork stuck into his abdomen, said Sgt. Terry Pierce.

"The word 'WAR' was carved across his chest with a knife," Pierce said, "and the 'W' had an upside-down 'KW' carved over the top of it."

"Death to Pigs" was written on the wall in what appears to be his blood, probably put on there with a piece of paper dipped in the blood of the victim," he said.

Pierce said Mrs. LaBianca was on the bedroom floor, stabbed several times in the back.

Both had pillow-case hoods over their heads tied on by electrical cords around the neck," Pierce said.

"The bedroom was in a turmoil, like she gave quite a struggle," Pierce said.

All the victims at the home of Miss Tate, 26, who had a starring role in Valley of the Dolls, were stabbed several times. Two also were shot.

"PIG" was scrawled on a door in what police said was blood.

"It almost looked like a ritual," said Sgt. Stan Korman. But despite the similarities, Sgt. Pierce and Inspector K. J. McCauley said they weren't convinced of any connection between the two slayings.

"They're too widely removed," said McCauley. His lawyer told newsmen Garretson was in his room in a guest house listening to his stereo when the multiple killings occurred.

He had said goodnight to an acquaintance, Steven Parent, 18, at about 11:30 p.m. Friday, then retired to his quarters.

He lay awake all night, watching television, listening to his stereo, writing letters, then went to bed about 6 a.m.

Parent was one of the five found shot and stabbed to death the next morning.

Garretson did not know there had been any crimes committed until police kicked in the door of his room shortly after 9 a.m. the next day.

Two separate circles of friends gathered at the sprawling, secluded estate at the cul-de-sac end of Gielo Drive.

In the main house were the beautiful people—the striking, blonde Miss Tate and the jet and sports car-set that attended her.

In the little yellow guest house at the far end of the property were a different crowd—the Hollywood Boulevard drifters, hitchhikers, drugstore cowboys and aimless youths who were invited to his quarters by the short, slight, tousle-haired young Garretson.

What police are seeking to learn is basically this: Was the killer a young drifter—or one of the beautiful people?

Garretson

Voityck Frokowsky

Polanski Buddy Polish Swinger

LOS ANGELES — The name Voityck Frokowsky meant little here until he died last weekend, a victim of the mass murders in Benedict Canyon.

But in his native Poland he was, at age 37, something of a legend among sophisticates who dived at and refuse to knuckle under to the Communist establishment.

"In Poland, where it's not easy to be a playboy, he had style. He never let the drudgery of that country get him down," said a close friend.

"In Warsaw's artistic society he was as well-known as Roman Polanski. (The movie director whose wife, Sharon Tate, was another of the mass-murder victims).

"He was the Polish version of a Hemingway hero, an odd-man-out who didn't give in to the establishment, who wouldn't play the regime game."

"He drove sports race cars. He was bright, witty and attractive. A real he-man. He wasn't an intellectual, but he was the kind of guy intellectuals like to have around. He was good company. Women loved him."

As a youth, Frokowsky met Polanski and became one of the future film-makers' close friends. Together they gravitated to the small set of artists, writers and actors that survived — and with flair — "the barrenness and bankruptcy of contemporary Polish society," a mutual friend said.

"But the heavy hand of censors and, of course, that bankrupt society drove out an enormous number of talented men in their late 20s and early 30s."

Polanski and Frokowsky were among them.

After arriving in the United States, Frokowsky spent the first eight months in New York city, where he became a fixture in a swinging circle of talented but hedonistic Polish emigres.

The circle later moved westward with Polanski, and broadened to include a variety of young entertainers, artists, writers.

Polanski was the centre of it. "This world tended to orbit around him," said the friend. "It was made up of a lot of bright, attractive young people. It was a sensual, not an intellectual world, and it was pot-oriented," the friend said.

Sex? "It was 'straight,'" the friend said. "When a guy staked out a girl, that marked her."

Frokowsky's "girl," the friend added, was heiress Abigail (Gibby) Folger, another victim of last weekend's massacre.

CANADIAN RADIO-TELEVISION COMMISSION

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission announces the following decision on applications heard at its sixth Public Hearing in London, Ontario, on March 4, 5 and 6, 1969. Further decisions will be announced later.

CATV Applications

As a matter of policy, the Commission's approval of applications for licences to carry on CATV broadcasting undertakings is for a period of two years. Licensing conditions will be based upon the Commission's CATV policy which was announced on May 13, 1968.

Decision CRTC 69-114

YIOUBOU, B.C.

Application for a licence by YIOUBOU TELEVISION LTD. to carry on a CATV broadcasting undertaking to serve Yioubou, B.C.

Decision: APPROVED.

Reasons: In the opinion of the Commission, the broadcasting receiving undertaking will provide a satisfactory service to viewers in the area.

The Commission grants a licence for a two-year period subject to the conditions which will be specified in the licence.

It is a condition of each licence that the licensee company shall comply on or before September 1, 1970, with the direction of His Excellency, the Governor-General-in-Council, regarding ownership and control (SOR 68-140).

F. K. Foster, Secretary

Look out for Gulf's new Tourguard Hostesses this summer. They're looking out for you.

We'd like to introduce you to Georgene Moskal and Barbara Polhamus. Because they're the two Tourguard Hostesses you're most likely to meet this summer.

Georgene and Barbara are part of an attractive new team working for Gulf. The Tourguard Team.

These girls are specially trained to check on standards of cleanliness, convenience and safety. And they keep a woman's eye on all our stations — right across the country.

Every time they stop at a Gulf station, they make 49 different checks. They look over our first aid and safety equipment, our service bays and walk ways, our sales rooms, store rooms, and rest rooms. They make sure everything is well stocked, clean and tidy so that when you call, you'll find us ready and waiting too — right across the country.

We're proud of our girls because they help us make your travelling more enjoyable. We hope you get a chance to meet them at one of our stations along the way.

U.S. Boy, 14 Youngest To Cross

DOVER, England (AP) — Fourteen-year-old Jon Erikson of Chicago became the youngest boy ever to swim the English Channel, battling gamely home through schools of agonizing Portuguese man-of-war jellyfish Monday.

Jon was stung but kept going to come ashore at Dover's Shakespeare beach 11 hours, 23 minutes after setting off from France. He is the son of Ted Erikson of Chicago who holds the record of 30 hours, three minutes for a double crossing from England to France and back. Jon said as he waded ashore: "I feel fine. My dad will be proud of me."

"Next on my program is a channel double. Then dad won't have anything over me."

"When I saw the cliffs of Dover," Jon said, "I thought to myself 'oh boy, nearly there'. It was a wonderful feeling."

"But those jellyfish were a devil. I swam through thousands of them. Most of them just bounced off me but one of them stung me slightly."

NEVER TIRED

"I never felt tired the whole way. I just kept going steadily on," he said.

Jon was trained for the swim by 29-year-old Rosemary George, herself twice a channel conqueror.

She stood in the escort boat during the last hundred yards shouting him home.

"But those jellyfish were a devil. I swam through thousands of them. Most of them just bounced off me but one of them stung me slightly."

"I could never have made it without him. We originally intended to go into St. Margaret's Bay on the other side of Dover but he decided we would never make it because the currents were changing and so we switched course."

TIDE HELPS

"From then on the tide helped me all the way in."

Miss George, an attractive blonde, said the water temperature was 64 degrees Fahrenheit and at the start the sea was flat calm. Later it became choppy and Jon had to battle a head wind.

The youngest boy swimmer previously was Britain's Philip Gollop, who was 16 when he made a 14 hours, 31 minutes crossing in 1965.

The youngest girl was Lenore Modell of Sacramento, Calif., who crossed in 15 hours 33 minutes in 1964 when she was 14 years and five months—six months younger than Jon.

Unity Try Approved

TOBACCO (CP) — The Christian Church (Disciples of Christ), with 5,000 members in 46 congregations across Canada, has voted to join union negotiations with the United Church and Anglican Church.

The decision was made at the church's convention in Edmonton during the week-end and was made public here Monday by the General Commission on Church Union.

Fraud Nets Prison

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two German nationals who promised free vacations to 57,000 magazine readers were sentenced in U.S. District Court Monday. One received two years in federal prison and the other was given four years probation.

Hans George Aust, 27, who prosecutors said masterminded the swindle, was sentenced to prison by Judge E. Avery Crary, who suspended an 18-month prison term for Aust's partner, Roland H. Graber.

The two Hanover, Germany, residents pleaded guilty to two counts of mail fraud and one of fraud last June 30.

Both could be deported. A spokesman for the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said his office is starting deportation hearing proceedings against them.

Court was told Aust and Graber placed an advertisement last April 5 in TV Guide magazine saying that two vacations to Mexico and Hawaii would be awarded in a drawing. Then, they asked for a $25 registration deposit from each of 57,000 "winners," many of them Canadians.

Prosecutor Edward Wallin said he thought the case involved the "most victims of any mail fraud in history." He said the scheme was discovered before the defendants could spend any of the deposits, and that the money is being returned.

Gas Weapon Clause Amended

Military Might Defended

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Without opposition, the U.S. Senate gave swift approval Monday to the first major restriction laid down by Congress to control deadly gas and germ warfare weapons.

An amendment to the $20,000,000,000 defence procurement bill to control testing, storage and transportation of lethal chemical-biological warfare devices passed the senate 91-0. Defence Secretary Melvin Laird's approval of the amendment practically guaranteed house passage.

The unanimous vote cooled, but did not end, the continuing controversy over the big weapons bill which reached its peak in last week's narrow approval of the Safeguard anti-ballistic missile system.

Within minutes of the CBW vote, Senator John Stennis (D-Miss.) the floor manager for the bill, charged critics of defence spending with "slander and libel" against the military profession. Pleading for quick passage of the bill, the chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee warned that the continued debate was "leading this country in a dangerous frame of mind."

Show Popular

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — For the third straight year, more than 300,000 attended the three-day Abbotsford International Air Show. Final attendance total this year was 306,000.

Still facing the senate, two days before the start of a three-week summer recess, were nearly 20 amendments to the procurement bill to kill such major weapons systems as the proposed supersonic manned bomber, a new navy aircraft carrier and the controversial CSA cargo plane.

Stennis, clearly concerned about the growing support for some of the amendments, gravely warned his colleagues that "if we go overboard cutting in the dark, we'll rue the day."

He said he was concerned about the attitude of "mistrust, distrust and down with the military" and warned that it could "leave this nation unprepared to defend its own people."

Kelowna Survives Problems

KELOWNA (CP) — The 63rd annual Kelowna Regatta ended Sunday and was declared a success by officials, despite being plagued by a fire, a sonic boom and a collapsing stand.

Deputy director Ted Ennals said that, with about 34,000 attending, the regatta was better supported than in any previous year.

"They really rallied round to support it after the Aquatic centre used by the regatta, including a stadium, bleachers and catering facilities, caused nearly $750,000 damage in early June."

Copter Comes Down Near Crash Scene

LONE PINE, Calif. (AP) — A helicopter fell into the Sierra Mountains Sunday as it carried a sheriff and a coroner to the wreckage of an airliner that crashed six months ago with 35 persons on their way home from a gambling junket to Nevada.

The sheriff, Merrill Curtis of Inyo County, suffered back injuries. The coroner, Don Talmadge, and the helicopter's three crew members were unhurt. But the helicopter was disabled.

It struck at 12,000 feet on the east rampart of the Sierra, near the plane crash on Mount Whitney where wreckage was spotted Friday by a private pilot. The DC-3, operated by Mineral County Airlines, disappeared Feb. 18 with 32 passengers and a crew of three on the return leg of a flight from Burbank and Long Beach, Calif., to a casino in Hawthorne, Nev.

The passengers had spent $10 each for the round trip, a floor show and dinner at the casino and a night of gambling.

The sheriff's office said the helicopter crash, 20 minutes after it took off from the Lone Pine Airport, may delay positive identification of the airliner's occupants.

Firefighters Busy As Ban Expanded

The first day of a total ban on outdoor burning in Victoria and Saanich was marked Monday by a heavy call on firefighters in both municipalities.

In Victoria, children playing with matches held 10 firemen in the Moss and May Street area for nearly seven hours, relighting a grass fire as fast as it was extinguished.

First call was received by the Victoria fire department at 3 p.m. and the last truck returned from the fire at 9:51 p.m.

"I think the police have a couple of names of the youngsters involved," said Fire Chief Eric Simmons.

He also blamed children playing with matches for a fire which started Sunday in a garage at 1905 Davie spreading to another garage and two homes, causing damage estimated at $9,000.

A Saturday fire at the Sea Cadet Hall on Robert Street was also blamed on children playing with matches.

With the weather office calling for intermittent rain Monday night and today, Fire Chief Simmons said he will be constantly reviewing the situation and that made him ban all rubbish and incinerator fires effective Monday.

In Saanich, with firemen called out Monday night to six blazes between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m., Assistant Chief Tom Moss said he saw little hope of lifting the ban unless there was heavy rain.

"Things are tinder-dry and it will take more than the sprinkling of rain we're getting at present to help any," he said.

He said a forest closure is also in effect in Saanich.

In Metchosin, Fire Chief Bill Price said a total burning ban had been in effect there for more than a month.

NO BAN YET

"The winds haven't let up here for two months, and everything has been dried right out. I shudder to think what will happen if a fire starts."

Sidney and North Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay still allow incinerator burning, and have no intention at this time of bringing in a ban, according to their fire departments.

Penalty in the city for burning without permission from the fire chief is a fine of $100. There is a similar penalty in Saanich.

High School Graduates

University Will Open Doors To Low-Average Students

Low-average high school graduates are being notified that they will be admitted to the University of Victoria this fall, the university announced Monday.

Sewage Stand Queried

By DON GAIN

A Saanich man has challenged the three provincial party leaders to make public their stand on the disposal of sewage.

Gordon Campbell, unsuccessful candidate in the Saanich reeveship race in 1967 and chairman of the standing committee on sewage disposal for the Saanich Action Committee, has written to Premier Bennett, NDP leader Tom Berger and Liberal leader Pat McGeer.

He asked them to state, as part of their current campaigns, whether they would:

● Permit the continued disposal of sewage to either lakes, rivers or salt water.

● Promote the construction of conventional sewage plants.

● Pursue a policy of underground treatment and disposal of sewage, and, where required, the acquisition and development of green belts or other areas for that purpose.

THESE FACTS

He asked the three leaders to make a public statement of their positions, should they be called upon to form the next government of the province, with respect to the foregoing questions and with respect "to these facts."

"Even full treatment of sewage does not produce a pathogen-free, sterile effluent."

"Federal and state government water reclamation experiments in California prove that neither treatment plants nor chlorination eliminate viruses from sewage effluent and that only percolation of effluent through soil renders sewage effluent 100 per cent free of viruses."

"Dr. Sydney J. Webb, professor of microbiology, University of Saskatchewan, Saskatchewan, has proven the presence in the atmosphere above sewage outfalls of living viruses of various infectious diseases. He also suggests sewage treatment plants create a greater airborne circulation of such viruses than outfalls do."

UVic thus eased fears that many South Island students would be refused admission because of an administrative squeeze between the campus and the high schools.

Ronald Jeffels, UVic director of admissions, also reminded students that the deadline for admission applications is Aug. 15.

RESTRICTIONS

Late in June, after receiving an allegedly inadequate operating grant from the provincial government, UVic announced its first enrolment restrictions.

Total enrolment this fall will be limited to 5,000, including 2,000 first-year students.

A priority system has been set up for freshmen giving precedence to those with a high school graduation average of C- plus or higher — 67 per cent.

COMPLAINTS

In past years the university accepted anyone who graduated from high school on the academic program, which meant a passing average as low as 50 per cent.

Complaints were voiced this summer that some students who had passed on recommendations would be unable to enter UVic.

Their marks, which they might have improved by writing government exams, would be inadequate to gain admission, some feared.

NOTICES OUT

UVic announced Monday that "notice of admission" has already gone to applicants in the first five priorities, including all who had a letter-grade average of C or better in eight core subjects in Grades 11 and 12.

"Still standing by are students who passed with a lower average and those whose residence is not in B.C. (other than a few particularly distinguished students.)"

Mr. Jeffels said: "Students in this lower category will have to wait until registration week to learn whether they can be admitted."

LATE SPACE

He noted that some space always becomes available at registration week (beginning Sept. 8) because some who apply for admission change their minds.

He urged anyone in doubt to apply now.

CALLING ELECTION campaign "the best I've run in," candidate John Tisdalle, Saanich MLA since 1953, signed nomination papers Monday before returning officer Peter Russell, becoming third contestant in Saanich and The Islands to make intentions official. Facing Mr. Tisdalle in Aug. 27 election are Don Johannessen of NDP and Liberal party's Louis Lindholm.

Tisdalle Discusses Problem

Other Area MLAs Share Pat Bay Link-Up Blame

Social Creditor John Tisdalle unburdened himself of the Pat Bay Highway "kerfuffle" Monday night, and tossed the blame to a few of his fellow candidates.

Mr. Tisdalle told about 40 Rotarians at the Red Lion that he will "no longer" speak for the condition of the Pat Bay Highway and the lack of a link-up with the Rose-Blanshard boulevard.

Mr. Tisdalle who has often in the legislature criticized his own party government policy on the Pat Bay highway, said that MLAs from Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Victoria constituencies must also answer for the highway situation, and that the attitude of the municipalities has also contributed to the "continuing kerfuffle."

OTHER MLAs

Mr. Tisdalle's party brothers, Walde Skilling, William Chant and Herbert Bruch hold three other seats in Greater Victoria; the fifth has been held by Liberal Allan Cox.

His remarks came at a Saanich and the Islands all-candidate meeting sponsored by the Douglas Rotarians, in response to a question from the floor.

Mr. Tisdalle, Saanich MLA since 1953, said he feared that if a highway link-up with a city artery was built around Town and Country shopping centre, the area would become commercially "decadent."

His comments came in response to opposing candidate Don Johannessen's earlier suggestion that Mr. Tisdalle as Saanich MLA was neglecting the highway issue.

"One of the problems I'm finding is that people wish they had an MLA for this area," Mr. Johannessen said. "Where was their MLA when they were trying to link this highway?"

"We've got to have an MLA who will get his leader . . . into the riding where he's needed."

Liberal candidate Louis Lindholm said of the highway: "Unquestionably, something has to be done about that deathtrap," and said "we should work towards" a Rose-Blanshard link-

In his earlier speech, Mr. Lindholm said secondary industry could not develop in B.C. "as long as resources can be taken out at wholesale rates" by foreign investors. He said the "rush" at Roberts Bank super-port is only to "make it possible" for an American company to sell $650,000,000 worth of coal to Japan.

Mr. Lindholm said Canada could develop a merchant marine of its own by moving the coal in Canadian ships.

Schools Sewage Solved

School district 63 served notice Monday that it intends to handle its sewage problems at Deep Cove and Brentwood elementary schools by pumping out their tanks and hauling the raw sewage away four or five times a week.

In a letter to the Metropolitan Health Board, building superintendent H. B. Shaw said the school board had received two tenders for the work, one proposing to dump it into the Sidney sewer system and the other into the Esquimalt system.

Sidney mayor A. W. Freeman noted the municipality had no receptacles through which the sewage could be added to its system and suggested council advise that the bid which would use the Esquimalt system be accepted.

Ald. Stanley Dear objected that the responsibility for providing facilities for the schools lay with North Saanich where they are located, but the mayor said: "We are all part of School District 63."

Some Progress In Ministrike

He met in the morning with two representatives of organized labor and later with John Price, president of Hy Fidelity Photos, 750 Discovery.

He said Mr. Price "has agreed to further discussion with the union," but not before Aug. 18, when the company's lawyer returns from vacation.

LONG INTERVAL

Such talks would be the first in several months in connection with a strike which has lasted more than eight months.

It began last Nov. 27 after what is believed to have been the smallest government-supervised strike vote on record. Three employees cast ballots, two favoring a strike. There were only nine employees involved. Six were laid off prior to the vote.

The union was seeking a first contract at the time.

The company failed last week in a move to have it decertified. The B.C. Labor Relations Board ruled that the Teamsters still represented the employees, including those laid off.

MAYOR ABSENT

Victoria Labor Council secretary Larry Ryan and acting president John Schibli met with Ald. Frampton as a result of pressure from affiliate unions to seek intervention by Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The mayor is absent on vacation and Ald. Frampton has been taking his place.

Motel Poll Questioned

'Jukebox' Image Pushing Tourism Into Doldrums?

By DON COLLINS

Has Victoria shed its quaint charms to appear more like the "jukebox civilization" south of the border?

Is it's downtown section as bad as Vancouver's?

Are there fewer tourists this summer? And, if so, is it because travellers are passing the city by in an increased number of mobile campers?

These were the kind of questions that floated around looking for answers at Monday's meeting of the Victoria Visitors Bureau.

There were indications business may be down this summer at the motels, although the general claim placed it on par with other years.

The meeting was told 91 motels had been canvassed and that 42 per cent reported a drop in business. About 28 per cent claimed an increase. Someone asked if the motel operators were all telling the truth.

"I'd say the 42 per cent telling you the truth," said (those reporting a drop) were director Ken King. "But maybe not the others — they're afraid of creating an image."

Director Sam Lane said Victoria had lost much of its old-time charm and was discouraging tourists with outskirts now crammed with places to buy pop, fried chicken and used cars.

"I think we'll come to see the day when we'll be saying: 'Go to our outer islands where the charm of the Northwest remains. Because downtown Victoria now is just a copy of downtown Vancouver."

He added: "We as citizens are going to have to ask ourselves what we are going to be — are we going to remain any of our Canadians? Or are we going to be a carbon copy of this jukebox civilization from beneath the line? We should remember that 95 per cent of our business comes from people down there trying to get away from this type of thing."

Like others, director Bob Wright said more people than before were travelling in campers. He thought inflation was to blame.

Of the average man, he said: "It's the only way he's going to take his holidays — by taking his own groceries with him and hitting the free spots."

The meeting was told most campers head up-Island without stopping in Victoria.

The meeting also heard complaints that the tourist industry was unable to know with certainty whether business is good or bad because of lack of qualified surveys.

As a result a committee was formed to gather statistics on all phases of tourism.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Readers: Jules and I were deeply touched by your warm and generous expressions of friendship on the occasion of our 30th wedding anniversary. I responded personally to all who sent a name and address; but many letters were signed simply Faithful Reader or The John Doe Family—no address. So, to all Faithful Readers and John Doe Families, our heartfelt thanks.

Dear Ann: Ten years ago I graduated from Stanford—Phi Beta Kappa. I had always wanted to go to law school, but it was more important that my husband be a lawyer so I went to work for a mail order house.

I quit work after six years to have a baby, but six years was just long enough for the mail order public to ruin my spelling. Today I am unable to spell the simplest words. After one sees unnecessary with one n and two c's about fifty times, he is never sure if it should be one n, one c and two a's or one or two c's and on s. This same thing has occurred (sic) with several other words—there I've done it again. Is occurred spelled with one c and two r's or the other way around?

I typed a letter for my husband last week and he was shocked at my spelling. When I told him the job had done it he said I must have been a lousy speller to begin with. Please tell him it can happen —Booby Prize.

It's Wirth It

Dear Booby: Not only can it happen, it did happen—to me. But what you lose in spelling you gain in insight and knowledge of people. It's wirth it.

Dear Ann: My son's wife, Phyllis, is two years younger than he but she looks 10 years older. The reason is her weight. They belong to the best country club in town. I'm sure Bud must be unhappy when he sees the wives of his friends, slim and sexy, in their little tennis dresses and skimpy bathing suits, while Phyllis sits there, with fat hanging out all over the place.

I've kept quiet about it and it hasn't been easy, but Sunday I could no longer contain myself. I said, "Phyllis, dear, Bud weighs the same today as when he graduated from Dartmouth 12 years ago. It's too bad you can't make that statement." She laughed it off with this hummer: "Well, maybe if Bud had had the six children in twelve years he wouldn't be able to make that statement either."

Larger Problem

Their youngest is 18 months old. Don't you think she is using childbirth as an excuse? Please give her some of your wonderful advice, Ann. She needs it.—Age 51, Weight 165.

Dear St: Phyllis didn't ask for any advice, but since you wrote I have a little for you, dearie. There's a problem here which is larger than your daughter-in-law's derriere. You.

Keep quiet about her weight or one of these days Phyllis might give you an answer that will melt your bridge-work. No dame ever lost an ounce because someone needed her about it, and the last person to say anything should be a 105-pound mother-in-law.

Dear Ann: Don't you ever take a vacation? I see your column seven days a week, every week in the year. Does someone ghost for you occasionally? What gives? —Just Noney.

Dear Just: Of course I take vacations, but my work is done before I go. I don't believe in ghosts. I produce every column that appears under by hyline.

A Lovelier You

Hips Remember Happy Holiday

By MARY SUE MILLER

Does the memory of a delicious and lazy vacation linger on? On your hips?

If so, how about reducing now? Happiness has a way of creeping up and up and up until reduction becomes a real chore. Here's an effective routine to try.

● Take your appetite off vacation? If your hips have gained several inches, you must have gained more than several pounds. To trim down, you have to return to your normal eating pattern.

● Put your hips to work! Excess weight settles in your hips when you laze. The following exercise works in a breeze.

Stretch out, back down on floor, bend elbows and rest backs of hands on floor about four inches out from shoulders. Keeping knees straight, slide left leg sideways about 12 inches, follow up with right leg. Continue moving legs at 12-inch intervals to farthest reach. Then quickly swing both legs back to starting position, letting heels just skim floor.

Repeat on right side, leading with right leg. Throughout exercise, press back to floor. Perform 10 to 20 times, working for brisk, precise movement.

You perform resultfully when the floor acts like massage on the back and sides of your hips; when your legs move like the hour hands of a clock, pointing in turn from six to three and from six to nine. The better your timing, the less time it takes to lose.

ERMA BOMBECK'S Anniversary

Septic Tank Lacks Sentiment

When the Burtons celebrated their wedding anniversary Richard bought Liz a rare diamond and she bought him a full-length mink coat.

When the Duke of Windsor realized it was his anniversary, he flew back from abroad and surprised the Duchess with 38 flavors of her favorite ice cream.

Composer Adolph Green and his actress-wife Phyllis Newman have an arrangement of that wonderful love song Just In Time to celebrate their anniversary; a gift of Leonard Bernstein.

This week I have been married 20 years to a man who shops for Mother's Day in a hardware store, birthdays in a gas station and Christmas in a plumbing-supply house.

I have never regarded myself as a sentimental woman but on our first anniversary when he told me the symbol was paper and handed me a fishing license with his name on it I began to suspect what I was in for.

There are two things you can do when you are married to an indifferent type—you can bite your finger and pretend it doesn't matter, and you can stir up more dust than a Gene Autry film festival.

"I hope you're not getting me a hot water heater for our anniversary," I snapped. "If you do I'll take it back." "Don't be ridiculous," he said. "We just got one for your birthday a couple of years ago."

"No, that's when I got the snow tires. Remember you said we'd all use them, but deep down inside I'd know they were my tires."

"This year your anniversary is very personal."

"Let me guess. A cemetery lot? A new partial plate? A gift certificate for $10 at Floyd's Bail Shop?"

"I think you'll agree it's something you need."

"You just put your finger on the problem. Why can't you be like other husbands who buy their wives sentimental baubles or outrageously expensive things?"

"Expensive! That hitch for the trailer I bought you last Christmas set me back over a hundred bucks."

"There you go. You always see me as a domestic drudge, a kitchen slave, a garage mechanic, an outdoorsman or practical Sarah. Why can't you see me as I really am? A sexy, lonely, desirable, materialistic woman?"

"Okay, just say the word and I'll cancel the order for the septic tank and get you some bright colored beads for your anniversary... Well?"

"So what's the word?"

Few Apply for Children

Single Adoptive Parent Waits

By NANCY BROWN

The first unmarried Victorian approved as an adoptive parent under a radical new policy is awaiting a child, says Mrs. Bernice Packford of the Family and Children's Service.

The policy to allow single people over 30 to adopt came into effect in Greater Victoria seven months ago, and only three people have applied for children under it.

Mrs. Packford said she was disappointed so few people had tried to get a child under the new plan.

"We draw our adoptive parents from all Greater Victoria—surely out of a population of some 170,000 there must be more than three people who want to give a child a home," she said.

Mrs. Packford said that although single parent adoption is approved in the Adoption Act it is uncommon among child welfare agencies.

"I believe that Victoria is the only place in B.C. with a definite policy and such adoptions are quite rare both in Canada and the United States," she said.

Mrs. Packford said the one approved adoptive parent wanted an older child—possibly one already going to school, and that the child will have to be found through a Vancouver agency.

She said in general the position in Victoria for adoptive homes is good.

"The demand for children seems to keep pace pretty well with those available," she said. "I hope it keeps that way."

However, she said, there is a need for parents who will take the three or four babies currently being held in foster homes because the agency doctors will not touch for them having first class health.

"These are children who may possibly have a heart problem, or may turn out to be slow learners," she said.

"Their problems aren't that great, but they do definitely need to be placed in homes as soon as possible."

"Mothers having babies can't always be sure of producing perfect infants, and I'm sure there are people who would adopt these children without the doctor's final assurance."

Philadelphia Puzzle

Plucked Petunias Probed

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Police are probing the case of the petunia plucker in Philadelphia's prettiest place.

For the last four years, the 2200 block North Sydenham Street has taken first place in the Pretty Street contest. According to block chairman Naomi Lewis, judges have been swayed by decorative window boxes displaying petunia arrangements in front of the 60 homes on the block.

This year, someone took the petunias. Police suspect the culprit may be a poor loser because even the roots are missing.

Despite Forbidden Marriage

Cleric Won't Leave Church

NEW YORK (AP)—Most Rev. James Shannon, former Roman Catholic auxiliary bishop for Minneapolis-St. Paul, says he is married but plans to remain in the church. The New York Times said Sunday.

"I do not intend to leave the Catholic Church," Shannon said. "It is my spiritual home. I love it dearly and have worked to the best of my ability as one of its priests for 23 years."

"It is a source of sadness and regret for both of us now that because of our marriage it will no longer be possible for me to serve the people of God as a priest or as a bishop," he said.

A former colleague of Bishop Shannon in the archdiocese said, however, that the marriage means an automatic excommunication for Bishop Shannon under church law.

"By marrying, he incurred excommunication, there's no need for a declaration of it," said Most Rev. Leonard Copley, auxiliary archbishop of the St. Paul-Minneapolis archdiocese.

He said the marriage could have been legal within the church if Bishop Shannon had "received the dispensation to marry beforehand and married a person who was free to marry."

"I wish he hadn't done what he did because of the shock in it, but I still regard him highly as a person," the bishop said.

"A lot of Catholics are terribly shocked because they know the personal commitment he made."

Shannon married the former Ruth Church Wilkinson, 50, a Protestant, on Aug. 2 in Endicott, N.Y., the Rochester N.Y. Democrat and Chronicle said Sunday.

The bride had previously married three times, the last ending in divorce.

Shannon has been teaching a graduate course at St. John's College in Sante Fe, N.M. He is to become vice-president of the school next month.

Shannon resigned his Minnesota post earlier this year after an exchange of letters with Pope Paul in which he took exception to church opposition to birth control.

Shannon said he wrote the Pope to assure him, "that I have no intention of trying to function as an underground cleric... I have no intention of leading or joining any movement which seeks to hurt the church."

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—The Vatican has publicly rebuked a defrocked French priest for refusing to retract an allegation that Pope Paul is a heretic and should be deposed.

He is Georges de Nantes, 44-year-old theology professor in Grenoble who was barred from exercising his priestly duties in 1966 after persistently attacking the Pope and the 1962-65 Vatican ecumenical council, informed sources said.

An ultra-conservative, he denounced the Vatican council as too progressive and Communist inclined.

A weekend statement issued by the Vatican Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith accused him of rebelling against Roman Catholic Church authorities in a manner that "disqualifies all his writings and his activities."

Big Change Proposed In Welfare

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon, calling the present U.S. poverty program an intolerable failure, Monday submitted to Congress the most radical federal welfare system ever proposed by a Republican administration.

He also announced steps that virtually ended the Office of Economic Opportunity as the operating, administrative agency in the war on poverty and left it essentially a social sciences laboratory for "innovative" development of new programs. If OEO comes up with new ideas that are workable, they will be turned over to other departments for execution.

Nixon asked Congress for a $4 billion added welfare package for his "workfare" system over the present cost of about $5 billion.

The heart of his new plan was federal payment of "basic income" to those American families who cannot care for themselves in whichever state they live.

A family of four with less than $1,000 annual income would be guaranteed a supplemental $1,600 from the government. For a family of four with a $2,000 income, the supplemental payment would be $960 a year.

Nixon recommended that all employable persons who accept these payments be required to register for work or job training and to accept either the training or work, if suitable jobs are available.

He proposed that the payments be made on certification of incomes "without demeaning and costly investigations" and with no requirement that the household be without a father to be eligible.

He also called for $600,000,000 in additional funds for a major expansion of job training and day care facilities.

Ottawa Helps Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec and Ottawa have concluded an agreement that will see the federal government pour $124,900,000 into the province in 1968-70 as part of a housing program for low-income families, senior citizens and orphans.

Robert Andras, federal minister without portfolio in charge of housing, and Robert Lussier, Quebec municipal affairs minister, announced the agreement Monday.

It will replace three agreements signed last year to ensure efficient administration of housing.

NEW YORK — Actress Carol Channing looks up to designer Victor Joris even though he's inches shorter. Carol — tall, lanky and with an insatiable yen for fashion that has set-up-and-take-notice impact — is madly in love with Victor's new maxicoats. She just bought six of them.

Star of New Collection

Cardin Revives Union Suit's Cousin

By EUGENIA SHEPPARD

PARIS — A trip to Paris for the fashion collections is no bargain nowadays, but it's worth every penny when you can watch the revival of an old American favorite.

One of the stars of Cardin's new, epic collection is the sweater that covers the whole body and is certainly first cousin to something once called the union suit. Naturally, its reincarnation is supremely elegant, rib knit, and with a zipper up the back, but I call it wolen underwear.

The body sweater is just the basic of the 300 new fashions that Pierre Cardin showed to 600 spectators in the big Salon

Des Ambassadeurs Friday noon. Six months ago Cardin's collection lasted more than two hours. He promised not to do it again for another year, but he couldn't resist.

Cardin is a compulsive creator, and one of the unique characters in fashion. Adjectives like moderate and conservative aren't in his dictionary. He cuts and folds his clothes as freely as a child playing with paper dolls, and he's in top cutting and folding form this season.

For the show, a white theatrical backdrop was set up at the end of the salon and models came in through archways with black vinyl curtains. The runway was shiny black.

Cardin's long coats, and he makes lots of them, look longer but are less tubular than most of the others in Paris. They start with small heads and small, up-tight shoulders and chests but somewhere between mid-calf and ankle they flip out in deep, set-on circular flares or end in wide bands of welled, black leather. The corded hem is an old favorite of Cardin's for giving a swangy movement to a skirt.

Besides the pavement-length coats, Cardin shows many long tweed dresses with wide leather belts that rest loosely around the hips. If the mournful look of some of the new Paris fashions boosts business for the Playboy Club with its cuddlesome bunnies, Cardin deserves part of the blame along with Saint Laurent and Dior.

On the short side, Cardin shows sports coats of fluffy fur. They are gathered into wide black leather hems that stop above the knees. They are worn with black vinyl boots and the black body sweater that is also wearable all by itself, if you add the smallest vinyl or leather skirt.

Cardin's sportswear is superb. He makes tunic-length sweaters with colored tops and wide black borders. They pull on over the head.

Cardin uses fringe all through the collection. Some of his dinner dresses have skirts made of knitted shawls with deep fringe borders. Suede, tweed, and vinyl coats and dresses are covered with tiers of fringe and the shoulders of one tweed suit are wrapped in a fringed, vinyl shawl.

Women Allowed Drink at Bar

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A law permitting women to sit at the bar was among more than 200 new statutes which went into effect in Washington Monday, but there was a joker in the deck.

Cocktail lounges can still make house rules requiring distaff drinkers to sip at tables, at least until an attorney-general's ruling clears up the question.

The Restaurant Association of Washington took no position on the new laws, but executive secretary Jack Gordon said most of its members "would prefer an optional house policy so each place could call its own shots within the limit of the law."

Another of the new statutes permits fines of up to $20,000 for oil discharges into state waters. James Behlke, acting director of the Water Pollution Control Commission, said parts of the law may be applicable to a recent oil spill from a barge which sank in the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Other new laws give the governor broad powers of emergency to deal with rioting, make it a felony to have a fire bomb and require a 72-hour waiting period between purchase and delivery of short firearms.

Still others permit young people between 18 and 21 to sell beer and wine in grocery stores and to be employed as musicians in night clubs serving liquor.

Glue-sniffing became a crime for the first time but the first conviction of a marijuana offence was reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor.

Perennial Strikeout Finally Connects

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Even after actor William Talman died of lung cancer, his widow Peggy couldn't give up cigarettes—until four-year-old Timmy saw his father on television urging people not to smoke.

Now Peggy Talman, 40, with the help of her six children, roves the United States carrying on her husband's campaign.

Talman, who played the perennially losing district attorney in the Perry Mason television series, recorded the one-minute anti-smoking message before he died last August. The message, sent to more than 500 TV stations, says:

Talman smoked 60 cigarettes a day; his wife 40. It took her months to break the habit.

"Don't let anyone kid you," she told an interviewer at her home in suburban Encino. "It's not easy."

The break came early this year after she and son Timmy watched Talman's posthumous message. Timmy turned to her and said:

"Daddy wants you to stop smoking."

She quit.

Intruder Shot By Boy

PORTLAND (AP) — A 13-year-old boy shot and killed a man as he tried to force his way into the youth's home Saturday.

The victim was identified as Michael Charles Herr, 25, of Beaverton, Ore. Police did not identify the boy, who was at home with his mother and two other children.

Police said Herr grabbed one of the children outside the home, was repelled by a knife, then chased the boy into the house. As he entered through a window, police said the 13-year-old shot him in the chest with a small calibre rifle.

Court Convicts State Official

SALEM, ORE. (AP) — Oregon Attorney-General Lee Johnson was convicted Monday on a charge of violating the state Corrupt Practices Act by a late filing of his campaign expenses report.

The fine, which could have been $25 for each day of delay, was suspended by circuit Judge Darrell Williams who heard the case.

The judge said Johnson acted "in good faith and without any criminal intent," but, he added, there is no provision in the law for a delay.

Johnson said he would appeal because "90 per cent of the candidates" were in the same boat and this would be "an intolerable situation."

Johnson, a Republican, beat incumbent Democrat Robert Thornton by some 69,000 votes last November, but was delayed until May 20 in taking office because of a series of charges that he had violated the state's Corrupt Practices Act.

A three-judge circuit court panel ruled that Johnson had forfeited the office by spending more than the law allowed, by failing to report expenses on time and by failing to have his signature notarized. It was this failure that caused a delay of more than a month because he went to Europe after the election.

The state supreme court overruled the circuit court panel, saying the violation did not affect the election outcome.

Spud Signals

Those of us who have picked up a bit of experience in gardening are inclined to take too much for granted when we try to help our novice neighbors — folks who are taking up this absorbing hobby for the first time.

We old-timers have absorbed so much of the necessary techniques through our pores, so to speak, that we unconsciously presume a basic knowledge on the part of the newcomer which he simply hasn't got, and we wind up by talking away over his head.

This was brought home to me the other day when I found out that a neighbor of ours who had planted potatoes for the first time didn't have the foggiest idea of when and how to dig them up.

Actually, the potato is an accommodating fellow and he keeps on putting up signals all through the summer to let us know what is going on underground. If you watch your plants closely through the growing season, you can soon learn to recognize and interpret these signals.

For instance, you will notice that the first topgrowth to appear in the spring grows straight upward, and the margins of the leaves will curve upward very slightly, making the leaf cup-shaped.

This is when the plant is living on the food stored in that piece of potato you planted.

A little later on, a slight change can be detected in the growth of the plant.

The haulm — this is the name we use for the topgrowth of potato plants — loses its upright habit and starts to spread outward, while the leaves are no longer cupped; the edges turn slightly downward.

Your plants now have roots of their own, and these roots are forcing for themselves. Tiny new potatoes are beginning to form.

Another stage is reached when the leaves lose some of their fresh green color. Some of the shine disappears; the leaves are duller, and turn a darker shade of green.

The energies of the plant now are being turned to plumping up the new potatoes underground, and it is at this stage you can tunnel down under a plant with a hand trowel and rob it of a few of its baby new potatoes for a delicious first feed of small whole new potatoes in cream sauce.

Finally, the haulm and the leaves start to turn yellow, and at this point you can lift your crop. The potatoes have attained their mature flavor and won't get any bigger.

If lifting is delayed much beyond this stage, there is some danger, given enough soil moisture, that the new crop will start sprouting in the ground — what we call secondary growth.

If this should happen, your spuds will have to be eaten up at once, for when a potato starts to sprout and grow like this, it won't keep in good condition in winter storage.

When you lift your crop, you'll find it a lot less messy if you cut away all the topgrowth first, leaving just a stub to mark the position of the plant.

Cart all this haulm away to the compost heap and clean up the potato patch with a rake before you start forking up the tubers. In this way you avoid injecting the tubers with any diseases which may have been on the leaves.

After digging, the crop is left out in the sun and wind long enough to dry the skins thoroughly. Five or six hours should be enough — too much sun will turn the skins green, and such green skins are mildly poisonous. Greened potatoes may be eaten only if peeled deeply enough to remove all the green coloring.

ART BUCHWALD

Fun at Any Price

While Art Buchwald is no variation we are reporting some of his all-time favorites.

PARIS — A doctor's life in Paris can be a very interesting one, particularly when he is called upon to treat visiting tourists.

Recently a doctor friend of mine was called in the late afternoon to a hotel by a woman who said she thought her husband was having a heart attack.

When he arrived the wife was hysterical and while the doctor was examining the patient, the wife kept berating her husband.

"I told you you shouldn't work so hard. How many times have I told you to slow down? You think you're a young man, but you're not any more and this should be a lesson to you."

"Business, business, business. That's all you ever think of. But you've never thought of me. What good is all your business if things like this are going to happen? Doctor, he is going to be all right?"

"Well," the doctor said, "all this talking isn't helping him much, nor is all this shouting and hysteria. We're going to have to take a cardiogram."

"A cardiogram?" the wife screamed at her husband. "How many times have I told you to take it easy? How many times have I said you'd wind up like all your friends who worked all the time? But you wouldn't listen. No, you were too smart. Now you have to have a cardiogram."

"Madam," the doctor said patiently, "there is nothing wrong with taking a cardiogram. I don't think there is anything wrong with your husband but I just want to make sure. Now please try to be quiet and let your husband rest until I can get a specialist to come over with the equipment."

That's easy for you to say," the wife cried, "but you've never seen him work. Day and night, that's all he ever thinks about — his business. How many times I have said: 'Keep it up, just keep it up, make a widow out of me. Then see what good your sales charts are to you.'"

"Did he listen to me? He did not. Now look at him stretched out there on the bed. Doctor, money is no object; just get him better, that's all I ask."

The doctor said: "Madam, I told you I don't think there is anything wrong with your husband. He just looks to me as if he's very tired and needs some rest. Apparently he's been going at a terrible pace."

"You can say that again!" the wife said. "I told him to slow down, I . . ."

The doctor went into the other room to call a cardiogram specialist.

Two hours later the specialist arrived with his nurse, and the doctor returned to see the results.

The cardiogram showed that there was nothing wrong with the husband.

The wife was tremendously relieved. "It's like having a gift from heaven," she said. "We can even go to the Lido tonight."

"I'm a little tired," the husband said weakly.

"You're tired?" the wife said angrily. "What about me after what I've been through today? You're always thinking of yourself."

The doctor tried to help the husband. "I do think your husband should take it easy for a week or so. Why don't you go to Switzerland and rest for ten days?"

"I didn't come to Europe to rest in Switzerland," the wife replied. "I came here to have a good time and breed or not, we're going to have it."

SHEILAH GRAHAM

LONDON (NANA) — "When I was very young — I was six — my father was in the King and I fell in love with Gertrude Lawrence. It was the only explanation anyone could offer for my English accent." "That's not an English accent," I said. "It's a Yul Brynner accent."

I was lunching with Roc Brynner, Yul's 22-year-old son, and except for the hair, long dark brown to the shoulders, I could have sworn it was the man I fell in love with when he played the king in the Rogers and Hammerstein musical 13 years ago. The same voice, the same penetrating brown eyes, face narrowing sharply under the strong cheekbones, the same apparent confidence.

There was the night when Yul left his wife, actress Virginia Gilmore, and his son. He simply took off. Now Virginia is a drama teacher in New York and Roc, who has homes in London and Paris, is very close to his father. "A few years ago we decided to drop the father-son relationship and we are friends," Roc lit one of his non-stop strong French cigarettes with a gold lighter inscribed "From Yul to Roc."

His father will be in the audience when Roc stars in his adaptation of Jean Cocteau's Opium at the Dublin Theatre Festival next month. It is a one-man play, with Roc as the young Cocteau and, if successful, the backers (Commonwealth United) will put it on in London.

"I was born in New York," said Roc. "At that time my father was doing a musical with Mary Martin, Lute Song. When I was 12 Jean Cocteau offered to become my godfather. I met him in Nice. We were in transit."

The son of Yul Brynner was born in Vladivostok in Russia, near the Mongolian border. Yul has joked about where he was born, giving any exotic city that comes to his mind. But Vladivostok is the place.

Roc has lived everywhere — California, Switzerland, France, England. "I went to the international school in Geneva. I have just finished four years at Trinity College in Dublin. After the divorce of my parents, I was mostly in boarding school."

We talked of his play, Opium. "It was written in notebook form by Cocteau while he was being cured of his addiction to a hospital. It was torture for him. He included drawings which he managed to produce when he could barely hold a pen in his hand." "Was he cured?" I wondered. "He no longer has a physical need for it. But as Cocteau said, those who have loved opium have lived in a different world. He said, 'Everything one does in life takes place on an express train toward death. Taking opium is like jumping off.' You know that in the 19th century opium was taken like aspirin. Meeting Cocteau had made a big impression on me," Roc continued. "Later I followed his films (Orpheus, Beauty and the Beast). Jean was a dramatic figure. Everything he wrote had a dramatic aura, which I hope I have captured in the play."

What's in a Name?

SYDNEY HARRIS

Until the Middle Ages, as we know, people did not commonly have last names.

Most surnames come from occupations, or localities, or personal characteristics — like Brewer, Dale, or Small.

What interests me in the latter connection is that certain personal characteristics have been perpetuated in names, while others have been ignored. There must be some good social or psychological reason for this.

There are many Littles and Shorts and Smalls — but virtually no Bigs or Tall or Larges. There are no Fats or Thins, but there are Lowes and Highs. (In Russian, however, Tolstol means "fat.")

Color names are odd, too — why should there be Browns and Whites and Blacks and Greens, and even a few Blues, but no Reds or Yellows? Especially since many families are red-headed, and we even have a given name,

"Rufus," which means "red-dish."

In ancient times, scores of names came from personal characteristics — even from deformities. Oedipus Rex means "Swallowfoot the Tyrant," because his foot was deformed in infancy; while Plato means "broad-shouldered," and Cicero is a nickname that stuck, meaning "chick-pea," from a wart on the nose.

Actually, even a number of given names have unflattering origins and were probably nick-names to begin with, such as Calvin, meaning "bold," Claude, meaning "lame," Priscilla, meaning "rather old," Barbara, meaning "foreigner," Mary, meaning "rebellious," and many more.

We have Longfellow and Crookshanks, which are self-explanatory, but the first Campbell must have had a "rinked mouth," the first Leonard a "shaggy mane," and one of the first purchasers of land in Pennsylvania was still named Richard Glutton, evidently proud of his patronymic.

As Gary Jennings points out in his diverting little book, Personalities of Language, personal names have been affected by passing fads and fashions.

For example, "in an earlier and less delicate society, bluntly descriptive names were considered no great horror. William the Conqueror, in one of his first proclamations to his new English subjects, announced himself as "I, William, surnamed the Bastard . . ."

We have long forgotten that Ursula once meant a "she-bear," that Vachel was a "little cow," or that Wilbur was a "wild bear." After all, John is Hebrew for "God is gracious," which has somehow become twisted into the most popular slang name for the lavatory. What will future philologists do with that, I wonder?

Program Confirmed

Board Stands By Time-Out Booth

By BILL STAVDAL

Saanich School Board on Monday stood by its decision to sponsor a controversial research program for emotionally disturbed children at McTavish elementary school.

The board, plus six members of the public, spent two hours hearing Victoria psychiatrist Dr. Phillip Ney and debating his proposed study. It is backed by a $16,000 research grant from the federal government.

Controversy rose two weeks ago after it was announced that a feature of the study would be a "time-out booth" which would be used to isolate children who became violent in class.

Dr. Ney told the school board Monday that the educational features of his project had been submerged in the debate over the time-out booth, which he now calls a "penalty box."

Dr. Ney said he and his research staff will use a variety of techniques to help children by working on their behavior academic ability, motivation and emotional stability.

Behavior has to be controlled before anything else can be accomplished, he said. Isolation was chosen as the method because studies elsewhere have shown it works, said Dr. Ney.

FUSSING USELESS
"A child is a social organism. To a child, social contact is almost as important as air and water," he said.

Dr. Ney argued that fussing over a child throwing a tantrum only teaches the child to do it again.

He said that he has seen overwrought children voluntarily isolate themselves to cool off.

NO VOLUNTEERS
"I've yet to see a child volunteer to be strapped or humiliated," he added.

"The size and the shape and the color and lighting (of the cubicle) are completely unimportant," he said, adding that it should be lit and furnished.

Dr. Ney was quizzed intensively by trustees, visitors, and an invited psychiatrist, Dr. John Wood, director of the Saanich Mental Health Centre.

DOUBT EXPRESSED
Dr. Wood voiced doubts that the isolation booth would do its work.

"There must be some way we can do it and not make it look like a cell," he said.

John King, a former teacher at Seven Oaks treatment centre for emotionally disturbed children, said an upset child would destroy any ordinary room if locked in it.

"I'm concerned about the humaneness of the experiment. What happens to the child in this room?" he asked.

'REALLY GOOD'
Apart from the isolation booth Dr. Ney's study sounded "really good," Mr. King added.

Mrs. Ruby May Parrott, chairman of the school board, pledged that the eight children in the class will not be put in "a telephone box."

District superintendent Robert Rice interjected that plans now tentatively call for a six-by-10 foot room.

Children involved in the program will be there with the consent of their parents.

DISCOURAGING FACTOR
"To try to improve the situation we have decided to charge the adult rate," said Mr. Cave. "It's a discouraging factor."

He added that student rates have long been a courtesy which few other businesses extend to students.

Theatre Pickets Put Off

University student spokesmen Monday postponed a planned picketing demonstration against five city movie houses after a meeting with the theatre managers.

Student leaders were angered at cancellation of student discounts on admission to restricted movies—barred to anyone under 18.

Michael Farr, president of the Education Undergraduate Society of the University of Victoria, and Amrit Marak, treasurer of the Alma Mater Society, said earlier Monday that they planned to apply to City Hall for permission to picket the Famous Players and Odeon theatres.

Martin Cave, manager of the Royal Theatre, said in a weekend statement that lower student prices had been discontinued all across Canada in an effort to discourage underage persons from attending.

Mr. Cave said that theatres run a risk of losing their licences and being shut down for allowing under-18 teen-agers into restricted movies.

In Victoria the policy also applies to the Odeon Theatre, run in partnership with the Famous Players houses.

From Vancouver on Monday, provincial movie censor R. W. McDonald told the Colonist that the policy change did not stem from him.

Tidal Wave Danger Dies Down

TOKYO—(Reuters)—Small tidal waves were hitting the Pacific coast of northern Japan today after an early-morning earthquake rocked the area, the meteorological agency said.

There was no immediate report of damage or casualties but the agency said the waves hit during an ebb tide and no serious effects were expected.

The waves followed a quake with a magnitude estimated at 7.8 and an intensity of four on the Japanese scale of seven, the agency said.

BOATS SAFE

The tidal waves began to hit the northernmost island of Hokkaido half an hour after the quake. Fishing boats were moved out of the harbor as a precautionary measure.

The agency said the earthquake shook Japan's main island of Honshu and the northern island of Hokkaido about 6:30 a.m. local time today (2:30 p.m. PDT Monday).

U.S. DESCRIPTION

In Berkeley, Calif., the University of California seismograph recorded what officials called a "potentially destructive" earthquake in the area.

The U.S. Earthquake Centre near Washington, D.C., said the quake, which it placed in the southern Kurile Islands, registered a magnitude of 8.3 on the Richter scale.

The centre said a great earthquake occurred in the same area on Oct. 13, 1963, and generated a tidal wave of 13 to 16 feet over a 180 mile stretch of the Kuriles.

LIKE ALASKA

The latest quake equals in strength the one that struck Alaska on March 27, 1964, and the San Francisco earthquake, the centre said.

The Japanese agency said the centre of the earthquake was detected about 94 miles off the east coast of Hokkaido.

In Victoria the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory registered a reading of 7.9 at 2:36 p.m. PDT. A spokesman said the Pacific seismic sea.

B.C. Calls Pollution Shot

By IAN STREET

Prime Minister Trudeau's claim that the federal government was prepared to make pollution "a criminal offence" means virtually nothing to B.C. Resources Minister Ray Williston said here Monday.

Commenting on the statement made last weekend in Vancouver, Mr. Williston said the prime minister "went to great lengths to say he would put municipal councils and corporate executives in jail, then just moved along enough to say this would be done if requested by provincial governments."

"In effect, all he did was say (Ottawa) will put certain sections in the Criminal Code. He said if provincial governments wish to administer them and bring them into effect, we'll provide the machinery. In fact, from an administrative viewpoint Ottawa is really not doing anything."

The minister added: "We're quite capable of looking after our own situation insofar as enforcement is concerned."

He was asked whether B.C. had ever discussed with federal authorities the possibility of providing jail terms for those who cause pollution. Mr. Williston replied there had been no such discussions.

"I have never found in dealing with responsible corporate executives and others that you have to talk in this way. As a matter of fact I couldn't really understand the stand the prime minister has taken. He must have found this from experience in eastern Canada because we have not had this type of experience in dealing with our executives or our municipalities either."

He also criticized NDP leader Tom Berger for stating that he should close down the Northwood Pulp mill near Prince George because it was polluting the Fraser River.

"I would agree with Mr. Berger if the Northwood people had taken the stand that they were polluting the river and we not going to do anything about it. As it is, they have admitted in a straightforward manner that things aren't going well, but they are doing something about it."

"We have a 100-to-1 safety margin and they are not doing damage to fish or to anything else."

"Under the circumstances Northwood is co-operating. And I think the 350 jobs directly involved, and many more attendant thereto, deserve better consideration than a politician coming up and saying, 'We're stopping production in this mill.'"

Peterson Claims NDP Imports

Social Credit is fighting an uphill battle in this election against the NDP which is bringing in party organizers from as far away as Ontario, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Monday.

He said Social Credit is confident of victory in what is still basically a two-way fight between the socialists, represented by the NDP, and the free enterprise government party.

Liberal leader Patrick McGee, Mr. Peterson said, is "really stretching the credibility gap" when he suggests the Liberals are going to form the next government.

"First it was the balance of power for the Liberals," he

The attorney general said Social Credit face a more difficult task in this election because unknown numbers of organizers are being brought into the province by the NDP.

"We haven't got an easy campaign ahead of us," Mr. Peterson said. "In an effort to try and ensure an NDP victory at the polls Aug. 27 people are being brought to work at the grass roots level from Ontario, Manitoba and the (NDP) national office."

"This by itself makes for a more difficult battle than we have faced in past elections."

Royal Navy Solves St. Helena Crisis

MAHE, Seychelles (AP) — Jonathan, 140 years old and the only giant tortoise left on the island of St. Helena, has been causing a bit of trouble lately.

He's been upending benches near the tennis courts on this South Atlantic island and disrupting croquet games by sitting on the croquet balls. The British governor, Sir Dermot Murphy, decided Jonathan must be getting lonely, his mate having died 100 years ago in a fall from a cliff.

Police Fight Rioters

LONDONDERRY (CP)—Riot police battled with 300 Protestants and Roman Catholics near this Northern Ireland city late Monday night in a fresh outburst of violence.

Trouble broke out in Dunganon when rival factions pelted each other with stones. Three police and several rioters were injured. One man was arrested.

The trouble came as residents tensed for another test of nerves—an anniversary parade today by 10,000 Protestants to commemorate the relief of Londonderry in 1689 from the siege of Roman Catholic King James II.

HEART OF STRIFE

This old city has stood at the heart of recent religious strife which has resulted in calls for British troops to move in to quell passions in ancient Ulster, the traditional name for Northern Ireland. And as Protestants prepared to take part in the procession, the Ulster government met to review contingency plans should trouble break out.

Roman Catholic and Protestant leaders planned to mingle in the crowds today to watch for trouble. But observers here said the question is whether the moderate majority can contain the almost casual violence of rowdy elements.

LONDON TALKS
Premier James Callaghan last week flew to London to discuss the possible use of British troops in the event of serious disorders. His talks followed the worst violence in 34 years in the Ulster capital of Belfast, when more than 100 persons were injured in riots earlier this month. The violence was sparked by another Protestant parade.

"Troops obviously were included in the whole discussion," Callaghan-Clark told reporters afterwards. "I am obviously not going to announce my plans at the moment."

The renewal of religious passions started here in November, when civil rights demonstrators urged equal rights for the

Floods Drown Three

CARACAS (Reuters) — A state of emergency was declared Monday in four southern Venezuelan states, where several rivers spilled over their banks following three consecutive days of torrential rain.

Three persons were reported drowned and more than 7,000 homeless in the states of Apure, Barinas, Cojedes and Guayrico, where floodwaters from eight rivers covered wide areas.

In Apure state, damage is extensive and cattle worth more than $2,000,000 are in danger of drowning the governor said.

Monk Ship Replica Sends SOS

NEW YORK (Reuters) — The United States Coast Guard said Monday it received a distress signal from a replica of a sixteenth-century craft which lost its rudder in the Atlantic.

The boat, sailing here from Ireland, is thought to be the 20-foot St. Brendan, sailed by Florida boatbuilder Bill Verity.

Verity, 43, set out from the southwest of Ireland village of Fenit on May 22 in an attempt to prove that St. Brendan and his Irish monks could have sailed across the Atlantic in the sixth century.

The coast guard said the disabled boat was 400 miles east of San Juan, Puerto Rico. A cutter and an aircraft headed for the scene.

The St. Brendan has a single sail, a large steering oar and a two-way radio.

SAIGON (AP) — More than 100 cities, towns and bases across South Vietnam were attacked today with rockets, mortars and infantry charges in what may be the kickoff of an autumn offensive, military spokesmen reported.

Saigon, Da Nang and the old Imperial capital of Hue were among the targets.

Also hit were three provincial and district capitals near the Cambodian border north of Saigon.

NORTHERN AREAS

The hardest hit area where the heaviest ground fighting raged was in the three northern provinces, an area along the Cambodian border 110 miles wide and 50 miles deep and roughly 60 to 80 miles northwest to northeast of Saigon.

Field reports said North Vietnamese troops from at least two divisions, possibly three, launched rocket, mortar and ground attacks on the provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon.

The district capital of Loc Ninh 14 miles farther north, an American task force headquarters at Quan Loi four miles northeast of An Loc; the provincial capital of Song Be, 80 miles north of Saigon; and a half dozen American artillery bases protecting the towns also

At last report fighting was continuing, were hit.

LULL BROKEN

The fighting and shelling broke an eight-week lull in the war. The action was the heaviest in three months since last May 11 when more than 200 allied bases and towns were shelled and several ground attacks launched.

There was no firm count on casualties, but U.S. headquarters said on the basis of fragmentary reports that they appeared to be light.

FALL CAMPAIGN

Military spokesmen commenting on stepped up Viet Cong activity Monday, had warned: "The intelligence we have indicates the enemy is preparing for a fall campaign to be conducted during August and September."

Fear of Cutback Dominates Parley Of Federal Union

HALIFAX (CP) — Uncertainty pervaded the opening of the five-day Union of National Defence Employees convention Monday as some 230 delegates await a possible announcement of cuts in the public employee field.

National President Clint Hornby of Manitoba told the union's first triennial convention that the first and most serious consequence of the federal government's policy on streamlining public service is the possibility that about 3,000 members of the union may well find "their jobs have evaporated into thin air in the near future."

And not to be forgotten, Hornby said, is that government policy once established seems to grow and grow.

"In other words, unless we take firm and definite action today to do our best to influence this new policy... additional and perhaps even larger cutbacks can be expected tomorrow."

office on downtown Granville St. about 3:45 p.m. One of them, believed to be the six-year-old, hopped over the counter and helped himself to a cash drawer.

Somebody finally noticed him, but by this time he had distributed $1,360 to his accomplices.

"What are you doing?" a bank employee asked him. "Nothing," was the reply. "Did you touch that cash drawer?"

"Nope."

And the boy bounced back

over the counter and disappeared out the front door behind his four friends.

Police nabbed them a couple of blocks away and recovered all but $120 of the money, which police said one lad hid on his escape route.

However, when the boy took police to the hiding place, there was no money.

The boys were sent home to their parents and will be charged in juvenile court. All but the six-year-old, that is. He's too young to be charged under the Criminal Code.

Only Six-Year-Old Free In Halifax Bank Caper

HALIFAX (CP) — What can five kids do for a little excitement on a boring afternoon? How about holding up a bank?

That's what five Halifax youngsters—one six-year-old, two 10 years of age and two 11—decided Monday, and they almost got away with nearly $1,400 in loot.

An amazed police inspector said it made history as far as he was concerned. Here's how he described the action:

The five entered the Nova Scotia Savings and Loan Ltd.

Victims Miss Life Pool

LOS ANGELES (LAT) — Two men and a boy unaware that water lay only a half mile from their stranded car — stumbled several miles to their deaths in a desert beside Death Valley, sheriff's deputies said Monday.

All three victims — Arnold Dobson, 65; Harold Mast 40, and his 16-year-old son, Harold Jr., all of California — died from prolonged exposure to 120-degree desert temperatures, officials said.

Dobson and the Masts were driving in the rugged Saline Valley desert when their car ran out of gas on a little used dirt road 15 air miles west of Death Valley.

Despite the fact that the men were reported to be experienced desert travelers, they carried no water, according to Inyo County sheriff's deputies.

The trio apparently started walking north, attempting to return to the paved Saline Valley road. The northerly walk took them steadily down into the hotter valley area.

Dobson dropped first. The elderly man's body was found five miles from the stalled car.

Mast and his son continued north, shedding clothing as they went. They had made their way another 12 miles when the boy stumbled and fell.

His son down, and himself near death, the elder Mast trudged on. He collapsed a half mile from his son.

Campaign Tagged Pub-Crawler

LAKE COWICHAN—More than 300 Lake COWICHAN and district residents attended an all-candidates forum, sponsored by IWA local 1-80 at Lake Cowichan Monday evening to hear contenders for the Cowichan-Malahat seat.

Weldon Jubenville, local president and chairman for the forum said they were sponsoring the meeting and another Aug. 21 at Ladysmith to give members an opportunity to hear the candidates.

Candidates present were Dr. Charles Ennals, Social Credit; Bob Strachan, NDP; Ken Hasanen, Independent; Joe Haddock spoke on behalf of the Liberal party which is holding a nominating meeting this evening at 8 p.m. at the recreation centre on James Street, Duncan, Jim Bigsby, 26, a Vancouver teacher originally from Victoria is expected to be acclaimed.

"This is a pub crawling campaign," said Mr. Hasanen in his 15-minute period.

"The other night I went to a local hotel and the bartender said, 'what in the hell is going on here? First Strachan is in, then Ennals and now you.'"

Mr. Hasanen said: "I predict the election won't be won on the smartest brain or the strongest back, it will be on the healthiest liver."

He predicted that either 47 per cent or almost 97 per cent of the people would vote on election day.

"I encourage you to encourage others to get out and vote and make it 97 per cent."

"I have had a battle to get the government of B.C. moving to prevent the depopulation of the province by pollution," said Mr. Strachan.

"No one has done more to create and allow pollution in this province than the present government of B.C. The Pollution Control Board says a lot of cheap political talk at election time."

"The Liberal party is not dead by God," said Mr. Haddock. "They are reviving and reviving today."

"Mr. Bennett has forgotten about humanity," he said.

"He has forgotten about the retarded people, the blind, crippled and alcoholics," he said. "They are the ones that have been neglected in this province."

Referring to the criticism by the other candidates of the Social Credit government Dr. Ennals said: "I don't really think everything is as good as it can be and that's why I am here. But everything is not all bad and you must give credit where credit is due."

He said that if he was elected, he would press for immediate completion of the Lake Cowichan Road. "The road is currently under construction. However only 12 miles of the 17-mile route are scheduled for completion under the present contract. I would like to see the complete job done within the next six to eight months."

No 'Shacks' In North Says Campbell

PORT HARDY—An assurance that there would not be any "shack-town" development in connection with community development and Utah Mining proposals in the north Island area, was given by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell, Social Credit candidate for the Comox riding when he spoke at a Port Hardy meeting Friday.

"We expect companies operating in the north Island area to be good corporate citizens and to be good community citizens," said Mr. Campbell. "Recreation facilities and proper community facilities must be in partnership with industrial development."

"The pollution control requirements and the open pit requirements of this new industrial venture will be second to none required on the North American Continent."

"Already it is possible to say that the North Island area has been fulfilling its role as a laboratory for working out the problems of multiple use."

"Already it is possible to say that the north Island area has been fulfilling its role as a laboratory for working out the problems on multiple-use."

"Last year the Social Credit government, in co-operation with the municipalities, the regional government of Mount Waddington and the industries in the North Island area, determined what land use policies for the north end of the Island would be declared through common discussion and resolution. The recently issued brochure prepared by this committee after several months of work is an indication of how willingly this concept has been accepted by the people in the north Island area and how successful can be this spirit of co-operation in determining land use policies and development priorities for the area."

"The 70s will be full of complex community and land use problems to solve," said Mr. Campbell, "wherein to use modern tools to make sure that our environmental management policies will bring a better life to the people of the north Island area."

Youth Included in Proposal

Pensioners May Use Old Hall at Duncan

DUNCAN—In a three to two vote, Duncan council Monday night agreed to designate the old municipal hall on Canada Avenue for temporary use by old age pensioners and "responsible" youth organizations.

Riders to the motion stipulated a feasibility study to whether the building could be used for that purpose, provide for the formation of a special committee consisting of all those concerned and that the capital and operating costs must be met by groups using the building.

'NO FACTS'

Voting against the motion were Ald. Jim Saunders and Ald. Dick Benzie. Both said they were in favor of the plan which was proposed by Ald. Rita Harder, but they suggested not enough information was available.

Ald. Saunders said: "This is absurd we don't know what we are voting on. I don't know any facts. This is ridiculous. I am not against people using it but I am against the motion."

Ald. Harder, Ald. Martin Lukaitis and Ald. Alan Kerr voted in favor. Ald. Harder said the revenue the city would lose by not renting the old municipal hall, amounting to about $4,000 a year, would be little if service to the community is taken into consideration. Council agreed with Ald. Harder who proposed inviting North Cowichan council members to sit on the special committee with city council and old age pensioners as well as representatives from youth groups.

Ald. Harder pointed out that because many of the senior residents and young people from North Cowichan are involved, that municipality also should participate in the project.

Ald. Kerr expressed appreciation that aldermen were not only concerned with "sewers and asphalt" but also with young people and pensioners.

However, he stressed that the city should have the courage to state that the recreational quarters would be temporary to ensure that the city would not be accused of "baiting out" the old and young when the time came to sell the property.

Vancouver Flights

Approval Sought For Lake Base

NORTH COWICHAN—Airwest Airlines is ready to start a twice-daily flight between Vancouver and Quamichan Lake.

The line's managing director N. Gold, from Vancouver, will present its case to North Cowichan council at its next regular meeting.

Mr. Gold met Monday with North Cowichan Mayor Donald Morton who advised him that his formal request to use Quamichan Lake as a landing base would have to have the approval of council which would have to consider any objection that might be voiced by residents in the area.

Mayor Jim Quail welcomed the proposed use of the old municipal hall. He said because a swimming pool was first choice for a large recreational development, the old and young people would probably have to wait as long as five years until another project could be undertaken.

Ald. Lukaitis, speaking in favor of Ald. Harder's proposal, said: "The old people feel cheated by the young and the younger generation feels something is wrong with us. The old people are pioneers of this country and to provide them and the young people some facilities is not too much to ask of the city."

SCHOOL FREEZE

Mr. Stupich told the 79 people attending that if anyone wanted to name major Sacred policies, he would tell them when those policies were first proposed by the NDP.

He said that the provincial government reputed claims of a freeze on school construction for months until one day Premier Bennett announced that the freeze was off.

He said that last year there was a freeze on activity rooms and gymnasiums, and that children were expected to run around in the rain.

At that time as well, he said, the government denied there was a freeze until it announced the freeze was lifted.

Earlier Mr. Gold advised Duncan city council that the service had been approved by the transport department. If approved by North Cowichan council, the airline would have one flight in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Nanaimo Meeting

Organizer Visits NDP Workers

NANAIMO—New Democratic Party organizer Gordon Bridgdon from Ontario predicted an NDP victory at a Nanaimo NDPs organizational meeting Saturday. He worked with local members during the February federal byelection which was won by national party leader, T.C. Douglas.

Although he is working with a mainland riding for the Aug. 27 election, he came to Nanaimo to visit friends he made during the five months he worked on the byelection.

He predicted that British Columbia would experience an NDP victory such as Manitoba had.

"Mr. Bennett is trying to put fear into the people of this province. Never has the NDP in this province been so well organized. The man himself is scared. They know they are in trouble," he said.

He said the record of NDP candidate Dave Stupich in the legislature was more active than some ministers as far as originality.

He said in 1964, a year after Mr. Stupich was elected, he proposed an extension for the vocational training school—which was only now being instituted.

In 1965, he proposed a hospital addition, which was only now being implemented, in 1966 he pressed for work on the Pearson Bridge which is now being done and in 1967 he pressed for a new Cedar Bridge, which was being built.

Of the proposed B.C. Telephone take-over, Mr. Bridgdon said that the American-owned utility was draining profits from people of the province.

"The issue is whether it is American-owned for profit or Canadian-owned for people," he said.

Mr. Stupich told the 79 people attending that if anyone wanted to name major Sacred policies, he would tell them when those policies were first proposed by the NDP.

He said that the provincial government reputed claims of a freeze on school construction for months until one day Premier Bennett announced that the freeze was off.

He said that last year there was a freeze on activity rooms and gymnasiums, and that children were expected to run around in the rain.

At that time as well, he said, the government denied there was a freeze until it announced the freeze was lifted.

Earlier Mr. Gold advised Duncan city council that the service had been approved by the transport department. If approved by North Cowichan council, the airline would have one flight in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Fishermen Criticize 10-Day Ban Order

CAMPBELL RIVER—Dis-satisfaction with a 10-day closure, currently in effect, was expressed by net fishermen at Heriot Bay, Quadra Island, when they attended a meeting Friday attended by Harry Harris, NDP candidate for the Comox riding.

They claimed that it was the best time for sockeye runs and refused to accept the reason for the closure, given by Fisheries Minister Jack Davis, that it was to protect pinks in local streams.

TOO EARLY

The fishermen said it was too early for pinks.

On Saturday Mr. Harris sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau asking for the fishing to be opened one day this week to enable the men to earn their unemployment insurance stamps and at least make operating expenses. A copy was sent to NDP leader T. C. Douglas.

Mr. Harris was at Campbell River's fishermen's wharf Saturday evening when he heard protests from about 12 net fishermen and trollers over the recent weekend troling closure.

LETTER READ

Mr. Harris read a letter from Mr. Davis which was sent in reply to one from Arthur Wilson of Burnt Bluff, Stuart Island.

The letter stated: "You may know that the areas bordering on the Gulf of Georgia are important from the recreational and tourist standpoint. Tourism is important to British Columbia and one of the principal reasons for visiting Vancouver Island and the Mainland opposite is for salmon fishing in salt water. Large numbers of people are employed directly and indirectly in servicing the tourists and our own citizens seeking recreation, and this must be seriously considered in allocating the use of the fishery resource."

LOWEST RUN

"Indications this year point to the coho run in the area being among the lowest on record. This means that there is a severe shortage of salmon available to the sport fishermen who, incidentally, far outnumber the commercial operators in the locality. The weekend closures to troling, while allowing the commercial people to still operate for five days per week, provides for a more equitable distribution between the sport and commercial fisheries of the available supply of salmon. The take in the Gulf waters by the commercial operators approximates 90 per cent of the total and I feel that some change towards more equitable distribution is in order."

NO CHECK

"The situation is in continuous review and if there are any indications of improvement, consideration will be given to lifting the closure."

The fishermen protested the figure of 90 per cent.

They said there were 300 trollers in the area and an estimated 130,000 sports fishermen. There was no way of knowing that trollers take 90 per cent of the salmon because no check is made on the number of sport fish taken.

Youth Aid Urged

NANAIMO—British Columbia's youth should be united under one area of purpose in a special youth department, said Social Credit candidate, Frank Ney Monday.

Mr. Ney was speaking to a group of about 35 people at a coffee party in the home of C. E. Kilner, 2830 Fairbanks Avenue.

He said later, "While we were there, a group of young people came along, filled with exuberance, waving banners. I told the people I was talking so that we should have a special youth department similar to the one in New York."

VERY FEW

"There's is one of the very few in North America and it was founded to promote citizenship, leadership training and gain the involvement of youth in adult-world projects. Youth today must have the opportunity to become involved in the mechanics of government because today's youth, more than ever, is important to the government."

He told the people at the coffee party that there were several reasons for his wanting to have a promenade along Departure Bay beach.

BUSY TRAVEL

He said one reason was to ensure safety for children who had to cross a much-travelled road to get to the beach. Another was to give older people without the mobility of youth, an opportunity to enjoy the beach without having to clamber over rocks and rough ground. A third reason was to protect the beach from continual erosion.

Fire Covers 10 Acres

MAPLE BAY—North Cowichan (Southend) and Maple Bay fire departments worked with B.C. Forest Service crews to battle a 10-acre fire which broke out Monday near Maple Bay garbage dump.

Garden Triumph

Mrs. Prudence Beuselink of 261 South Alberni Highway, Parksville, above, gained six firsts, two seconds and one third prize in Saturday's flower show at Parksville. Arrangements of cactus dahlias, which she is holding, gained a first prize. Below John Steed of Craig Street, Parksville won aggregate trophy for most points. Mr. Steed retired from CPR machine shops at Calgary four years ago.

Firemen Go To Top

By ARNOLD OLSON

NANAIMO—Despite Nanaimo's claim to be world leader in bathtub technology, nearby Departure Bay is the group that has been collecting the awards.

Last week Departure Bay firemen's Fagan's Folly bathtub took first place in the Kelowna regatta's first annual bathtub race. Skipper Robin Pedersen, 17, pushed the tub at top speed along the triangular course, for 30 miles.

Results among Nanaimo area tubs were: Departure Bay firemen's Fagan's Folly, first; Country Club Plaza tub piloted by Kelly Lyle, 16, second; Dorman's Chipper piloted by Brian Dorman, 14, fourth; Richardson's Marina tub piloted by Neil Richardson, 16, fifth; Departure Bay firemen's Raptured Duck, piloted by Bill Laughlin, 15, sixth, and their Armored Cow, piloted by Richard Stephen, 17, seventh. A few Mainland finishers separated Harwood's Diner's Rendezvous and R. and A. Smith Plumbing's tubs which were among the top 20 finishers.

However the group did get souvenirs it didn't bargain for—parking tickets totalling $14.50 and two cars were towed away.

Port Alberni Controversy

Bylaw Appeal to Council Fails in Latest Meeting

PORT ALBERNI—A man's home may be his castle. But not if the home has wheels under it, and the wheels take it to Port Alberni. Then it may still be a home, but the man who lives in it becomes a second-class citizen.

That is the view of the Port Alberni Mobile Home Owners' Association after a meeting with city council Monday night.

ONLY ONE

"They ignored us," said association chairman Gerald Wright. "If they listened to us at all, it was only with half an ear. It was a pretty disappointing experience. I can tell you."

Mr. Wright appealed to city council either to repeal its fee for mobile homes bylaw—he says Port Alberni is the only city on Vancouver Island to have passed such a bylaw—or to collect the fee itself instead of having mobile home park operators collect it.

The bylaw was passed under a recent amendment to the Municipal Act which allows city councils to impose a $4-$10 a month fee for occupancy of mobile homes and allow operators to collect it.

SERVICE DEMAND

"Our position is that this fee is unjustified," said Mr. Wright. "But if the city is going to impose it, then we say let the city collect it."

"Then we will all know where we are—and when we want services, for example, we'll be able to demand them because we've paid for them."

"The way it is now, all the city wants is our money. It doesn't want to admit that we pay money, it doesn't want to give us any services for the money," he said.

CHEQUE PAYMENTS

After the "utterly pointless" meeting with city council, said Mr. Wright, the next step would be a meeting of mobile home owners Sunday.

"We will probably propose that everybody pay their fee by cheque to the city," he said. "Everybody except me, that is. I will volunteer to withhold paying my fee, so that we can make a legal test case out of it."

Bonanza Daze Will End With Flourish

DUNCAN—This week's Bonanza Daze will culminate in a large variety of entertainment during the last two days Friday and Saturday.

Several downtown streets will be closed to vehicular traffic.

The event is being sponsored by Duncan merchants and the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce.

Friday's program will consist of carnival rides and, beginning at 6 p.m., a local country music group will start an entertainment program followed by other musicians, judo club members and Duncan majorettes.

Saturday's events will begin at 10:30 a.m., with a baby contest, followed at noon by singer Jim Dougan, a beard contest at 1 p.m., a mayor's archery contest at 2 p.m., and various entertainment groups until 5:30 p.m.

Other items will be a Jaycee country and western barn dance at the James Street recreation centre with the Midnight Ramblers at 9 p.m. Friday, demonstrations of various crafts sponsored by the Rotary Club on Station Street, and a Lions' Club-sponsored steer raffle on Craig Street.

Campbell River Proves Popular

CAMPBELL RIVER—Officials at the Campbell River Chamber of Commerce tourist office have reported a steady stream of visitors to the district.

Between May 1 and July 31, Mrs. Carol Barnaby and Miss Margo Condit, in charge of the bureau which is located in the city museum-library complex, estimate that they have handled approximately 561 enquiries between May 1 and July 31.

Mrs. Barnaby said she thought that there were about three times as many tourists using the facilities on the average which meant that almost 1,700 people had been aided by the bureau.

She said that on the busiest days, 50 to 60 requests had been filed.

Most of the tourists come from other parts of Canada, and the United States.

However, some visitors who have signed the guest book are from a number of countries including South Africa, New Zealand, Great Britain, France, Denmark, The Netherlands and Germany. In their comments, the New Zealand visitors said that the Campbell River area of the B.C. Coast reminded them very much of their home land.

There are also many favourable comments on the beautiful scenery, the accommodation the district has to offer, and the service dispensed by the bureau.

Campbell River museum selling two packets each containing four transparencies of Indian masks and artifacts on display at the museum. The packets cost $1.

The slides in one packet include Kwakiutl laughing woman mask; Kwakiutl hamatsa mask; Nootka mask, and Cape Mudge mortuary pole. The second packet contains mortar and pestle, sunman face, Nootka mask, and a grouping of masks and mortuary poles.

Russians See Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Informality was the keynote of a visit to Nanaimo of a group of Russian marine scientists aboard an oceanographic research vessel.

The 300-foot Vityaz of the USSR was anchored in the bay while its scientific staff toured Nanaimo Biological station and chatted with local scientists.

The visitors, led by Dr. Z. A. Filatova, a woman specialist in deep marine life and head of the expedition, were welcomed by K. R. Allen, director of the research station.

Tidal Wave Danger Dies Down

TOKYO—(Reuters)—Small tidal waves were hitting the Pacific coast of northern Japan today after an early-morning earthquake rocked the area, the meteorological agency said.

North Drive On?

SAIGON (AP)—More than 100 cities, towns and bases across South Vietnam were attacked today with rockets, mortars and infantry charges in what may be the kickoff of an autumn offensive, military spokesmen reported.

SAIGON, Da Nang and the old Imperial capital of Hue were among the targets.

Also hit were three provincial and district capitals near the Cambodian border north of Saigon.

At last report fighting was continuing.

LULL CAMPAIGN

The fighting and shelling broke an eight-week lull in the war. The action was the heaviest in three months since last May 11 when more than 200 allied bases and towns were shelled and several ground attacks launched.

There was no firm count on casualties, but U.S. headquarters said on the basis of fragmentary reports that they appeared to be light.

An Associated Press photographer reported that Viet Cong gunners scored two direct hits

There was no immediate report of damage or casualties but the agency said the waves hit during an ebb tide and no serious effects were expected.

The waves followed a quake with a magnitude estimated at 7.8 and an intensity of four on the Japanese scale of seven, the agency said.

BOATS SAFE

The tidal waves began to hit the northernmost island of Hokkaido half an hour after the quake. Fishing boats were moved out of the harbor as a precautionary measure.

The quake shook Japan's main island of Honshu and the northern island of Hokkaido about 6:30 a.m. local time today (2:30 p.m. PDT Monday).

U.S. DESCRIPTION

In Berkeley, Calif., the University of California seismograph recorded what officials called a "potentially destructive" earthquake in the area.

The U.S. Earthquake Centre near Washington, D.C., said the quake, which it placed in the southern Kurile Islands, registered a magnitude of 8.3 on the Richter scale.

The centre said a great earthquake occurred in the same area on Oct. 13, 1963, and generated a tidal wave of 13 to 16 feet over a 180 mile stretch of the Kuriles.

LIKE ALASKA

The latest quake equals in strength the one that struck Alaska on March 27, 1964, and the San Francisco earthquake, the centre said.

The Japanese agency said the centre of the earthquake was detected about 94 miles off the east coast of Hokkaido.

In Victoria the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory registered a reading of 7.9 at 2:36 p.m. PDT. A spokesman said the Pacific seismic sea-

Fear of Cutback Dominates Parley Of Federal Union

HALIFAX (CP)—Uncertainty pervaded the opening of the five-day Union of National Defence Employees convention Monday as some 230 delegates await a possible announcement of cuts in the public employee field.

National President Clint Hornby of Manitoba told the union's first triennial convention that the first and most serious consequence of the federal government's policy on streamlining public service is the possibility that about 3,000 members of the union may well find "their jobs have evaporated into thin air in the near future."

And not to be forgotten, Hornby said, is that government policy once established seems to grow and grow.

"In other words, unless we take firm and definite action today to do our best to influence this new policy... additional and perhaps even larger cutbacks can be expected tomorrow."

Only Six-Year-Old Free In Halifax Bank Caper

HALIFAX (CP)—What can five kids do for a little excitement on a boring afternoon? How about holding up a bank?

That's what five Halifax youngsters—one six-year-old, two 10 years of age and two 11—decided Monday, and they almost got away with nearly $1,400 in loot.

An amazed police inspector said it made history as far as he was concerned. Here's how he described the action:

The five entered the Nova Scotia Savings and Loan Ltd.

office on downtown Granville St. about 3:45 p.m. One of them, believed to be the six-year-old, bopped over the counter and helped himself to a cash drawer.

Somebody finally noticed him, but by this time he had distributed $1,360 to his accomplices.

"What are you doing?" a bank employee asked him.

"Nothing," was the reply.

"Did you touch that cash drawer?"

"Nope."

And the boy bounced back over the counter and disappeared out the front door behind his four friends.

Police nabbed them a couple of blocks away and recovered all but $120 of the money, which police said one lad hid on his escape route.

The boys were sent home to their parents and will be charged in juvenile court. All but the six-year-old, that is. He's too young to be charged under the Criminal Code.

Peterson Claims NDP Imports

● Three summonsed on sign charges. Page 6.

Social Credit is fighting an uphill battle in this election against the NDP which is bringing in party organizers from as far away as Ontario, Attorney-General Leslie Peterson said Monday.

He said Soreles are confident of victory in what is still basically a two-way fight between the socialists, represented by the NDP, and the free enterprise government party.

Liberal leader Patrick McGeer, Mr. Peterson said, is "really stretching the credibility gap" when he suggests the Liberals are going to form the next government.

"First it was the balance of power for the Liberals," he said. "Then a minority government and now a majority Liberal government. This is certainly not what I'm finding in the country at all."

The attorney general said Soreles face a more difficult task this election because unknown numbers of organizers are being brought into the province by the NDP.

"We haven't got an easy campaign ahead of us," Mr. Peterson said. "In an effort to try and ensure an NDP victory at the polls Aug. 27, people are being brought to work at the grass roots level from Ontario, Manitoba and the (NDP) national office."

"This by itself makes for a more difficult battle than we have faced in past elections."

deputies said Monday.

All three victims—Arnold Dobson, 65; Harold Mast 40, and his 16-year-old son, Harold Jr., all of California—died from prolonged exposure to 120-degree desert temperatures, officials said.

Dobson and the Masts were driving in the rugged Saline Valley desert when their car ran out of gas on a little used dirt road 15 air miles west of Death Valley.

Despite the fact that the men were reported to be experienced desert travelers, they carried no water, according to Inyo County sheriff's deputies.

The trio apparently started walking north, attempting to return to the paved Saline Valley road. The northerly walk took them steadily down into the hotter valley area.

Dobson dropped first. The elderly man's body was found five miles from the stalled car.

Mast and his son continued north, shedding clothing as they went. They had made

Royal Navy Solves St. Helena Crisis

MAHE, Seychelles (AP)—Jonathan, 140 years old and the only giant tortoise left on the island of St. Helena, has been causing a bit of trouble lately.

He's been upending benches near the tennis courts on this South Atlantic island and disrupting croquet games by sitting on the croquet balls. The British governor, Sir Dermot Murphy, decided Jonathan must be getting lonely, his mate having died 100 years ago in a fall from a cliff.

Today, the Royal Navy took a giant tortoise hatchling four years ago at the botanical gardens in Mahe and put them aboard the supply ship Fort Sandusky for the trip one-fourth of the way around the world.

When the ship arrived, the hatchling was found to be a male, shedding clothing as they went. They had made their way another 12 miles when the boy stumbled and fell.

His son down, and himself near death, the elder Mast trudged on. He collapsed a half mile from his son.

Sheriff's deputies, in retracing the trio's path, located a slush, sand-covered spring within a half mile of the car.

It was described by Sheriff's Sgt. David Walker as a spring-fed oasis beneath the sandy surface. A little scooping by hand, and the sand would have become a life-saving pool, he said.

Oil Products Labelled 'Hot'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The striking Oil Chemical and Atomic Workers Union Monday announced plans to declare "hot" today the products of six oil companies in the British Columbia Lower Mainland: Imperial, Shell, Gulf, Home, Texaco and Standard.

Under the circumstances Northwood is co-operating. And I think the 350 jobs directly involved, and many more a t t e n d a n t t h e r e t o, deserve better consideration than a politician coming up and saying, 'We're stopping production in this mill.'

that they were polluting the river and we not going to do anything about it. As it is, they have admitted in a straightforward manner that things aren't going well, but they are doing something about it.

TRUDEAU FACES CHARGE

VANCOUVER (CP)—An information charging Prime Minister Trudeau with common assault was sworn out Monday night by Richard Bruce Jesmer, 17, of Niagara Falls, Ont.

Jesmer swore out the information before Justice of the Peace Don Stewart at police headquarters, alleging he was assaulted last Friday, the night of a demonstration outside a Liberal party dinner.

Mr. Stewart said he has scheduled an ex parte hearing for 4:15 p.m. Friday, at which time he will decide whether or not the charge can be proceeded with. "It is at my discretion."

About 300 persons gathered outside the Seaford Armoury here for the demonstration. Mr. Trudeau had agreed to address the crowd but did not do so after shouts drowned even a demonstration leader.

The information was signed at about 11 p.m. PDT Monday by Jesmer, a laborer who has been living in Vancouver for the last two months. He said he came here to seek work.

Common assault is an indictable offence under the Criminal Code of Canada and carries a maximum penalty of two years.

Mr. Stewart told reporters he had no choice but to accept the information and added:

"It means Mr. Trudeau literally has been charged but no evidence has been heard. This will be heard at 4:15 p.m., Friday, Aug. 15, and then I will either issue a process or not. It is at my discretion."

Mr. Stewart said that if he decides that prosecution is to proceed, a summons could be issued requiring Mr. Trudeau's attendance in court or a warrant could be issued for his arrest.

The justice of the peace said that if he decides the case should not go ahead, "that's it, save an appeal to a higher court."

Mr. Stewart said he will hear witnesses Friday. Rick Stow, 18, of Mississauga, Ont., who was with Jesmer when Jesmer swore out the information, described himself as a witness.

Little League Oldsters Get in Their Last Inning

The little fellows who do the playing will take over the stage for the rest of the week in the Canadian Little League baseball championship at Hampton Park but it belonged to their elders Monday night. Shown in conversation at reception at Chief Petty Officers' Mess are, from right to left: Bill Grindlay and Gene Nason, manager and coach, respectively, of B.C. champions from Collingwood; district-administrator and tournament-chairman Wilf Cain;

Walter Lee of Vancouver, provincial co-ordinator, and Wilf Bosse and Phil Clarke, manager and coach, respectively, of Edmonton Hardisty, Prairie champions. Double-elimination final starts at 2 this afternoon with game between Edmonton Hardisty and Valleyfield, Quebec-Maritimes champion, Collingwood and Galt, the Ontario champions, meet at 6. Losers play at 2 Wednesday and winners at 6. Single games are scheduled for 6 Thursday and Friday and, if needed, at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Blazing Reds Stretch Lead, Astros on Move Too

Cincinnati's blazing Reds continued to hog the spotlight in the major league baseball Monday with Houston Astros and St. Louis Cardinals bidding for at least a share of the attention.

Now three games ahead in the National League's Western Division and also seven games better off than any of their four pursuers on the losing side, the Reds won for the fifth straight time and for the 13th time in 15 games.

Jim Merritt, who got his 12th victory, broke a 3-1 tie in the eighth inning to give Reds a 4-3 win over Philadelphia Phillies.

Merritt singled, moved up a base when Pete Rose drew a base on balls, then scored on a single by Jim Stewart.

Manager Dave Bristol agreed with Wayne Granger when a one-out error put a runner on base in the ninth inning and the relief star retired the next two batters.

The Reds stretched out a bit on Sunday, clobbering the Phillies 10-0, with a 12-hit attack supporting the three-hit pitching of Gary Nolan.

But while Atlanta Braves, Los Angeles Dodgers and San Francisco Giants have been slipping slowly back, the Reds have been unable to gain on the Astros.

Astros kept pace, four and a half games back on Sunday by defeating Montreal Expos, 3-1, then resumed their regular beating of New York Mets on Monday, winning, 3-0.

The Mets again had trouble with Tom Griffin. The hard-throwing rookie right-hander has beaten them three times, is unscored on in the 25 innings he has pitched in the three games and has given up only 13 hits while getting 28 strikeouts.

Four of the hits and eight of the strikeouts came Monday in eight innings. When he got behind the leadoff hitter, 3-0, in the ninth inning, relief-star Fred Gladding came in to preserve the shutout.

Meanwhile, the defending-champion Cardinals crept at least within hoping distance of Chicago Cubs in the Eastern Division.

The Cardinals gained a game Sunday when they scored four runs in the ninth inning to defeat San Francisco, 7-4, while the Dodgers upended the Cubs, 4-2.

Monday, with the Cubs idle, the Cardinals sliced the lead to seven and a half games and moved within two percentage points of the Mets by besting the Dodgers, 4-2.

A three-run homer by Tim McCarver and fine relief pitching by Joe Hoerner featured the Monday victory.

Steve Carlton had a five-hit shutout after seven innings but started to tire in the eighth inning, the Dodgers scoring twice on singles by pinch-hitter Maury Wills and Willie Davis around a triple by Manny Mota.

Carlton got out of that jam when Andy Kosco's bid for a home run was caught up against the centre-field wall but manager Red Schoendienst got out the hook when the left-hander walked the first batter in the ninth.

Hoerner got Jim Lefebvre to hit into a double play, then struck out Jim Torborg.

Firefighters Busy As Ban Expanded

The first day of a total ban on outdoor burning in Victoria and Saanich was marked Monday by a heavy call on firefighters in both municipalities.

In Victoria, children playing with matches held 10 firemen in the Moss and May Street area for nearly seven hours, relighting a grass fire as fast as it was extinguished.

First call was received by the Victoria fire department at 3 p.m. and the last truck returned from the fire at 9:51 p.m.

"I think the police have a couple of names of the youngsters involved," said Fire Chief Eric Simmons.

He also blamed children playing with matches for a fire which started Sunday in a garage at 1905 Davie spreading to another garage and two homes, causing damage estimated at $9,000.

A Saturday fire at the Sea Cadet Hall on Robert Street was also blamed on children playing with matches.

With the weather office calling for intermittent rain Monday night and today, Fire Chief Simmons said he will be constantly reviewing the situation that made him ban all rubbish and incinerator fires effective Monday.

In Saanich, with firemen called out Monday night to six blazes between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m., Assistant Chief Tom Moss said he saw little hope of lifting the ban unless there was heavy rain.

"Things are tinder-dry and it will take more than the sprinkling of rain we're getting at present to help any," he said. He said a forest closure is also in effect in Saanich.

In Metchosin, Fire Chief Bill Price said a total burning ban had been in effect there for more than a month.

NO BAN YET
"The winds haven't let up here for two months, and everything has been dried right out. I shudder to think what will happen if a fire starts," Sidney and North Saanich, Esquimalt and Oak Bay still allow incinerator burning, and have no intention at this time of bringing in a ban, according to their fire departments.

Penalty in the city for burning without permission from the fire chief is a fine of $100. There is a similar penalty in Saanich.

University Will Open Doors To Low-Average Students

Low-average high school graduates are being notified that they will be admitted to the University of Victoria this fall, the university announced Monday.

Sewage Stand Queried

By DON GAIN

A Saanich man has challenged the three provincial party leaders to make public their stand on the disposal of sewage.

Gordon Campbell, unsuccessful candidate in the Saanich reeveship race in 1967 and chairman of the standing committee on sewage disposal for the Saanich Action Committee, has written to Premier Bennett, NDP leader Tom Berger and Liberal leader Pat McGee.

He asked them to state, as part of their current campaigns, whether they would:

- Permit the continued disposal of sewage to either lakes, rivers or salt water.
- Promote the construction of conventional sewage plants.
- Pursue a policy of underground treatment and disposal of sewage, and, where required, the acquisition and development of green belts or other areas for that purpose.

THESE FACTS

He asked the three leaders to make a public statement of their positions, should they be called upon to form the next government of the province, with respect to the foregoing questions and with respect "to these facts:"

"Even full treatment of sewage does not produce a pathogen-free, sterile effluent."

"Federal and state government water reclamation experiments in California prove that neither treatment plants nor chlorination eliminate viruses from sewage effluent and that only percolation of effluent through soil renders sewage effluent 100 per cent free of viruses."

"Dr. Sydney J. Webb, professor of microbiology, University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, has proven the presence in the atmosphere above sewage outfalls of living viruses of various infectious diseases. He also suggests sewage treatment plants create a greater airborne circulation of such viruses than outfalls do."

He said Mr. Price "has agreed to further discussion with the union," but not before Aug. 18, when the company's lawyer returns from vacation.

LONG INTERVAL
Such talks would be the first in several months in connection with a strike which has lasted more than eight months.

It began last Nov. 27 after what is believed to have been the smallest government-supervised strike vote on record. Three employees cast ballots, UVic thus eased fears that many South Island students would be refused admission because of an administrative squeeze between the campus and the high schools.

Ronald Jeffels, UVic director of admissions, also reminded students that the deadline for admission applications is Aug. 15.

RESTRICTIONS

Late in June, after receiving an allegedly inadequate operating grant from the provincial government, UVic announced its first enrolment restrictions.

Total enrolment this fall will be limited to 5,000, including 2,000 first-year students.

A priority system has been set up for freshmen giving precedence to those with a high school graduation average of C-plus or higher — 67 per cent.

COMPLAINTS

In past years the university accepted anyone who graduated from high school on the academic program, which meant a passing average as low as 50 per cent.

Complaints were voiced this summer that some students who had passed on recommendations would be unable to enter UVic.

Their marks, which they might have improved by writing government exams, would be inadequate to gain admission, some feared.

NOTICES OUT

UVic announced Monday that "notice of admission has already gone to applicants in the first five priorities, including all who had a letter-grade average of C or better in eight core subjects in Grades 11 and 12."

"Still standing by are students who passed with a lower average and those whose residence is not in B.C. (other than a few particularly distinguished students)."

Mr. Jeffels said: "Students in this lower category will have to wait until registration week to learn whether they can be admitted."

LATE SPACE

He noted that some space always becomes available at registration week (beginning Sept. 8) because some who apply for admission change their minds.

He urged anyone in doubt to apply now.

CALLING ELECTION campaign "the best I've run in," candidate John Tisdalle, Saanich MLA since 1953, signed nomination papers Monday before returning officer Peter Russell, becoming third contestant in Saanich and The Islands to make intentions official. Facing Mr. Tisdalle in Aug. 27 election are Don Johannessen of NDP and Liberal party's Louis Lindholm.

Tisdalle Discusses Problem

Other Area MLAs Share Pat Bay Link-Up Blame

Social Creditor John Tisdalle unburdened himself of the Pat Bay Highway "kerfuffle" Monday night, and tossed the blame to a few of his fellow candidates.

Mr. Tisdalle told about 40 Rotarians at the Red Lion that he will "no longer" speak for the condition of the Pat Bay Highway and the lack of a link-up with the Rose-Blanchard boulevard.

Mr. Tisdalle who has often in the legislature criticized his own party government policy on the Pat Bay highway, said that MLAs from Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Victoria constituencies must also answer for the highway situation, and that the attitude of the municipalities has also contributed to the "continuing kerfuffle."

OTHER MLAs
Mr. Tisdalle's party brothers, Waldo Scillings, William Grant and Herbert Bruch hold three other seats in Greater Victoria; the fifth has been held by Liberal Allan Cox.

His remarks came at a Saanich and the Islands all-candidate meeting sponsored by the Douglas Rotarians, in response to a question from the floor.

Mr. Tisdalle, Saanich MLA since 1953, said he feared that if a highway link-up with a city artery was built around Town and Country shopping centre, the area would become commercially "decadent."

His comments came in response to opposing candidate Don Johannessen's earlier suggestion that Mr. Tisdalle as Saanich MLA was neglecting the highway issue.

"One of the problems I'm finding is that people wish they had an MLA for this area," Mr. Johannessen said. "Where were their MLAs when they were trying to link this highway?"

"We've got to have an MLA who will get his leader... into the riding where he's needed."

Liberal candidate Louis Lindholm said of the highway: "Unquestionably, something has to be done about that deathtrap."

and said "we should work towards" a Rose-Blanchard link-up.

In his earlier speech, Mr. Lindholm said secondary industry could not develop in B.C. "as long as resources can be taken out at wholesale rates" by foreign investors. He said the "rush" at Roberts Bank superport is only to "make it possible" for an American company to sell $650,000,000 worth of coal to Japan.

Mr. Lindholm said Canada could develop a merchant marine of its own by moving the coal in Canadian ships.

Schools Sewage Solved

School district 63 served notice Monday that it intends to handle its sewage problems at Deep Cove and Brentwood elementary schools by pumping out their tanks and hauling the raw sewage away four or five times a week.

In a letter to the Metropolitan Health Board, building superintendent H. B. Shaw said the school board had received two tenders for the work, one proposing to dump it into the Sidney sewer system and the other into the Esquimalt system.

Sidney mayor A. W. Freeman noted the municipality had no receptacles through which the sewage could be added to its system and suggested council advise that the bid which would use the Esquimalt system be accepted.

Ald. Stanley Dear objected that the responsibility for providing facilities for the schools lay with North Saanich where they are located, but the mayor said: "We are all part of School District 63."

Some Progress In Ministrike

He met in the morning with two representatives of organized labor and later with John Price, president of Hy Fidelity Photos, 750 Discovery.

He said Mr. Price "has agreed to further discussion with the union," but not before Aug. 18, when the company's lawyer returns from vacation.

LONG INTERVAL
Such talks would be the first in several months in connection with a strike which has lasted more than eight months.

It began last Nov. 27 after what is believed to have been the smallest government-supervised strike vote on record. Three employees cast ballots, two favoring a strike. There were only nine employees involved. Six were laid off prior to the vote.

The union was seeking a first contract at the time.

The company failed last week in a move to have it decertified. The B.C. Labor Relations Board ruled that the Teamsters still represented the employees, including those laid off.

MAYOR ABSENT
Victoria Labor Council secretary Larry Ryan and acting president John Schibbi met with Ald. Framp-ton as a result of pressure from affiliate unions to seek intervention by Mayor Hugh Stephen.

The mayor is absent on vacation and Ald. Framp-ton has been taking his place.

Director Sam Lane said Victoria had lost much of its old-time charm and was discouraging tourists with outskirts now crammed with places to buy pop, fried chicken and used cars.

"I think we'll come to see the day when we'll be saying: 'Go to our outer islands where the charm of the Northwest remains. Because downtown Victoria now is just a copy of downtown Vancouver."

He added: "We as citizens are going to have to ask ourselves what we are going to be — are we going to remain any of our Canadians? Or are we going to be a carbon copy of this jukebox civilization from beneath the lime? We should remember that 95 per cent of our business comes from people down there trying to get away from this type of thing."

Like others, director Bob Wright said more people than before were travelling in campers. He thought inflation was to blame.

Of the average man, he said: "It's the only way he's going to take his holidays — by taking his own groceries with him and hitting the free spots."

The meeting was told most campers head up-island without stopping in Victoria.

The meeting also heard complaints that the tourist industry was unable to know with certainty whether business is good or bad because of lack of qualified surveys.

As a result a committee was formed to gather statistics on all phases of tourism.

Motel Poll Questioned

'Jukebox' Image Pushing Tourism Into Doldrums?

By DON COLLINS

Has Victoria shed its quaint charms to appear more like the "jukebox civilization" south of the border?

Is it's downtown section as bad as Vancouver's?

Are there fewer tourists this summer? And, if so, is it because travellers are passing the city by in an increased number of mobile campers?

These were the kind of questions that floated around looking for answers at Monday's meeting of the Victoria Visitors Bureau.

There were indications business may be down this summer at the motels, although the general claim placed $4 on par with other years.

The meeting was told 91 motels had been canvassed and that 42 per cent reported a drop in business. About 28 per cent claimed an increase.

Someone asked if the motel operators were all telling the truth.

"I'd say the 42 per cent telling you the truth," said (those reporting a drop) were director Ken King. "But maybe not the others — they're afraid of creating an image."

Director Sam Lane said Victoria had lost much of its old-time charm and was discouraging tourists with outskirts now crammed with places to buy pop, fried chicken and used cars.
